TV Board To Meet Saturday

Benis Lutz, superintendent of Teays Valley School District, has announced that the regular board meeting will be held 10 a.m. Saturday at the central district office.

Lutz said the schools will be in session Monday if the weather permits. There is sufficient alternate fuel in the district's schools to warrant no problems for Teays Valley students.

Three of the four buildings have been switched to the alternate fuel, which has provided enough savings on allocations for the fourth building to operate. The main reasoning for the closing this week has been due to the county roads situation, although the district was complying with Columbia Gas orders.

Natural Gas Trickles East

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal authorities are wielding their new emergency natural gas powers in an effort to keep gas flowing to homes and hospitals throughout the East.

The Federal Power Commission's first emergency allocation order Thursday diverted surplus West Coast gas to the Transcontinental Gas Line Corp. of Houston for distribution along the gas-starved Eastern seaboard from North Carolina to New York.

FPC Chairman Richard Dunham said the gas—about 150,000 cubic feet per day—was intended for the states of Washington and Oregon, but utilities and industries there can replace it wih other fuels or gas in storage.

The FPC's Bureau of Natural Gas reported Thursday that some pipelines were down to a two-day supply of gas for their top priority customers, including homes, health facilities and small businesses.

The allocation powers that President Carter sought and received from Congress on Wednesday allow natural gas to be rationed only from low-priority users such as industries to high-priority customers.

The FPC also acted Thursday to allow interstate pipelines to purchase gas from the more expensive, unregulated intrastate pipelines in Texas and elsewhere. Intrastate pipelines deal in gas that is produced and consumed in the same state. That gas is not regulated by the federal government or under federal price controls.

Dunham said it was too soon to tell how much gas would be made available or what effect it would have on consumer prices.

The FPC emergency rules allow interstate pipelines to buy gas at prices up to $2.25 per thousand cubic feet without prior approval, or at even higher prices if they reflect all the seller's added costs for switching to other fuels.

Some of the gas switched from Oregon and Washington was costing up to $2.75 per thousand cubic feet. But the amount involved in the allocation was only a fraction of the nearly 100 billion cubic feet of gas burned daily in the United States this winter.

The FPC's regular price ceiling on interstate gas is $1.44. Prior to the emergency, some intrastate gas was selling within production states for as much as $2.25.

Dunham said that although natural gas moves through pipelines at only 20 miles per hour, the emergency gas deliveries will be expedited by trading shipments of gas along the pipeline. The East will receive the West Coast surplus without waiting for that gas to physically travel across country, he said.

Incoming Federal Energy Administrator John F. O'Leary warned on Thursday that natural gas shortages may become chronic and more severe over the next decade unless the nation follows strict conservation measures.

"If we don't do it, we're going to fall off the cliff in the 1980s," said O'Leary. He said he doubts that ending federal price controls on natural gas will increase the supplies.

"I don't really think price is the problem," said O'Leary. He said the nation probably cannot produce enough natural gas to keep up with the rising demand.

State Continues Weather, Gas Actions

By TOM GILLEM
Associated Press Writer

Some school districts in the Columbus area plan to close Monday for a month because of the gas shortage, while districts in northeastern Ohio are remaining open under strict conservation efforts.

And an Associated Press survey of Ohio's 10 largest school districts shows some schools plan to operate on split sessions to keep from closing as their gas supplies dwindle.

"We would prefer to be in school," said Dr. John Ellis, superintendent of Columbus City Schools, the state's second largest district, which will conduct an extensive "school without schools" program for its 96,571 students while classes are suspended.

"But rather than roll over and play dead, we intend to make every effort to keep learning alive in Columbus during this crisis period."

Southwestern City School , also in Franklin County, will be out of session for the same period. Supt. Martin Stahl said students will report once a week to school facilities heated by alternate fuels for assignments.

The lengthy closings were made feasible by new legislation that allows 15 "energy days" which schools are not required to make up.

Dr. Paul W. Briggs, superintendent of the state's largest district in Cleveland, said his schools are burning alternate fuels where possible and are under restricted gas usage and a strict conservation program. But they are not closing.

"We wouldn't be in this trouble if everybody conserved and in the past had taken efforts to reduce consumption overall," Briggs said.

The Youngstown, Canton and Akron school districts also plan no closings as a result of the energy crisis.

In Dayton earlier this week, some 40,000 students tried to attend school in buildings that were heated only enough to keep pipes from freezing in an effort to avoid closings.

"It's kind of a sad story," said John B. Maxwell, superintendent of Dayton schools. "We had to give that up simply because the kids just couldn't write with temperatures in the 50s."

Dayton schools closed three days this week and will take spring vacation off next week. Dayton Power & Light Co. plans to vaporize a supply of propane gas the district purchased, and schools most likely will reopen Feb. 14.

In Toledo, all 55,496 students were out of school Thursday and Friday this week, and some 12,000 of them will miss classes three days next week until Columbia Gas of Ohio lifts its order for maintenance level operations.

Dr. James Jacobs, superintendent of Ohio's third largest district in Cincinnati, said 15 of his schools are closed while on maintenance gas levels and 36 are under a 30 per cent reduction ordered by Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. Students in the closed schools are attending split sessions, at other schools, he said.

In Parma, officials are in the process of converting buildings from gas to fuel oil. Meanwhile, students from 15 schools are attending split sessions in the remaining buildings.

In other developments related to weather and energy problems:

—The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration named six Ohio counties to receive emergency assistance for ice and snow removal. They are Fayette, Hancock, Highland, Paulding, Putnam and Van Wert.

Ohio's 88 counties were being "prioritized" to determine which will receive the federal aid first, according to Transportation Director David Weir. The money became available after President Carter declared an emergecy in the state.

—Almost 32,000 of the 48,772 persons who filed initial claims for unemployment benefits during the first three days of this week were involved

City Schools Lay Opening Plans

Fritz F. Jacobs, Superintendent, announced today the plans for Monday, February 7, 1977 for the Circleville City Schools.

Weather permitting, school will resume on a modified basis as follows at the regular time Monday.

Elementary schools will be in session for a full day unless additional directives are received which would alter this plan.

High School and Junior High schools will be open only until 10:30 a.m. to receive assignments in each class. They will be dismissed at that time and are scheduled to resume classes Wednesday, February 9, unless additional directives are received that would require continued closings.

The reason for the High School and Junior High schools to be dismissed at mid morning Monday and remain closed Tuesday is due to the most recent mandate from Columbia Gas that large commercial users remain closed through Tuesday. These two buildings are in that classification.

School buses will run regular routes to bring students in the A.M. A special run at 10:30 a.m. will return High School and Junior High students Monday and buses will again run at regular time for elementary P.M. routes.

High School and Junior High building will operate for the two hours Monday on maintenance fuel only and students and staff should dress warmly.

These plans are as definite as possible at the present time. Everyone should continue to listen to the radio over the weekend if further developments and announcements become necesary or bus routes require changes due to drifting.

Elementary buildings will be cooler than usual due to the week long shutdown and students and staff should dress warmly.

After-school activities at elementary buildings are cancelled until further notice, at least for Monday and Tuesday and all home athletic contests through Tuesday are postponed.

Alternate Plans Made By LE Board

Students in the Logan Elm School District are to resume normal sessions Monday, weather permitting. The board met in special session Wednesday to discuss the natural gas shortage and its effects on the two gas heated buildings, Laurelville and Washington Schools.

If the two schools are ordered to close by the gas company, plans have been made for the students to attend other schools. Washington students would attend the Pickaway School Building on alternate days and Laurelville students would attend Saltcreek school on alternate days. If this emergency measure is implemented, it would provide continuous reinforcement of learning for students in kindergarten through the sixth grade.

Students in grades seven through 12 will attend classes in a normal manner on a daily basis. Buses will operate on approximately the same time schedule.

Parents will be provided with a calendar designating the days their child will attend school along with written announcements concerning pertinent information concerning the "Day by Day" emergency plan.

John Henn, superintendant of the district, comments, "We feel confident that with the help of the board, the administration, teachers, parents, students and all personnel associated with the school district, that we can be successful in providing a sound educational program for all students in spite of the critical natural gas shortage."

Non-certificated employes will be paid for regular work hours missed because of the school closings. This temporary measure is effective from Jan. 17 through March 31.

Athletic contests, home or away, may be played on days school is not in session if it is closed due to the gas shortage crisis. This is effective Feb. 5 until further notice. Games or practices may not be held on calamity days, when school is closed because of the safety of transporting students.

The board set the next regular meeting for Feb. 7, at 7:30 p.m.

Westfall Schools Will Open Wednesday

Due to the latest notice from Columbia Gas of Ohio, schools in the Westfall district will not open until Wednesday. The board of education received word of this extension Thursday, after the board's regular meeting.

During the meeting on Tuesday, several plans were presented to the board with none being adopted on a permanent basis. The calendars presented have the ending of school during the second week of June. This closing will be extended two more days now that the opening next week has been changed.

The options include going to school in a split session plan or an alternate day plan including Saturdays. Parents will be provided with details as soon as decisions have been made.

Plans are under way to convert heating systems in the school buildings relying on natural gas to an alternate fuel. At Jackson School a fuel oil burner will be used in one of the three natural gas furnaces there. Several suggestions have been made for an alternate system for the high school building, but none have been decided upon.

Requests to use the buildings in the district for activities not directly related to the educational program were not granted because of the curtailment of heating fuels and the irregularity of the school calendar.

Also during the meeting, Mrs. Maureen Owens was granted maternity leave effective Jan. 31. The next board meeting is scheduled for Feb. 21 at 7:30 p.m.

Danger Of Floods Eases

WASHINGTON (AP) — As tons of snow layering the Northeast melt, experts say there should be no major flooding problems unless the thaw is accompanied by extraordinarily warm weather and heavy rain.

National Weather Service officials said Thursday that thawing usually occurs from the end of February through March or April.

Barring unusual circumstances, the rivers and streams of the East should be able to accommodate the billions of gallons of water melting off the snow pack, they said.

Most rivers will rise and many may reach up to their flood stages, but few overflows are expected, they said.

Robert A. Clark, the weather service's associate director for hydrology, said the flood threat is greatest in the Northeast, particularly along the Ohio River and its tributaries and the Kanawha River in West Virginia.

But he added: "The potential for flooding is not extremely serious. We would need fairly rapid thawing combined with warm rain to really get into trouble."

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, responsible for the nation's flood control, said an added buffer is that most rivers and flood control reservoirs in the Ohio River area now have below normal water levels.

"The 70 reservoirs throughout the Ohio River basin are all low and the river also is at a lower than normal level," said John Lane of the corps' Ohio River division. "We have never had a flood in this basin caused directly by snow melt."

Richard Drummond, a spokesman for the corps' Lower Mississippi Valley division, said the Mississippi below Cairo, Ill., where the Ohio enters it, also is very low.

"We actually have a problem with low water and will be dredging in some areas to make (the river) deeper so traffic can navigate," Drummond said.

The corps spokesmen said the biggest problems may come from ice floes.

"If there is a fast melt, large floes of ice could break free and damage boats, barges and other vehicles, as well as moorings and docks," Drummond said.

Ice conditions are the worst in 20 years and many main waterways are frozen over, he said. Large pieces of ice moving with the runoff waters could snag on river banks and bottoms to form ice jams and lead to flooding, he cautioned.

Clark said almost all major waterways in the Northeast are frozen or almost frozen and could have ice problems. They include the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, which meet in Pittsburgh to form the Ohio; the Kanawha in West Virginia, and the Hudson and Connecticut river systems.

January's 30.3-inch snow may be a blessing in disguise that may preclude flooding in the Ohio River and its tributaries.

Heart Fund Campaign Gets Started

To kick off the month-long nationwide campaign of the American Heart Assn., the Pickaway County Heart Assn. sponsored a worker's meeting at Berger Hospital Thursday.

Dr. Michael Geron said today that this year's goal for Circleville and Pickaway County will be $9,000, compared to $7,000 collected last year.

Dr. Geron is chairman of the Pickaway County Heart Campaign.

Heart and blood vessel disease kill more than half of all Americans who die each year from all causes. We are literally fighting for the lives of 950,000 Americans a year, and the lives of 29 million more afflicted in some way with cardiovascular diseases," Dr. Geron said.

February is the month in which heart campaign volunteers visit their neighbors to distribute heart-saving information and collect money for the Heart Assn. research, education, and community service programs. The campaign will culminate on Feb. 27, Heart Sunday.

HEART FUND PLANNERS — The Pickaway County Heart Fund campaign started officially Thursday with a worker's meeting at Berger Hospital. Discussing plans for this year's drive are, from the left: Drexel Poling, business chairman; Dr. Michael Geron, general chairman; Dick Fisher, city chairman; Charles Pritchard, county chairman.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices opened higher Friday after a sharp drop in the previous session attributed largely to cold weather-related factors.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained 1.08 to 948.22.

Trading was fairly active, with the New York Stock Exchange ticker running three minutes behind in recording trades shortly after the opening. Advances took a slim lead over declines on the NYSE.

In the early going, J.C. Penney rose 1/8 to 44 1/8; Sears, Roebuck was up 1/2 to 62 1/2; RCA Corp. was down 1/8 to 27 3/8, and Kerr McGee gave up 3/8 to 73 3/8.

Just after the opening, the Labor Department announced that unemployment dropped in January to 7.3 per cent, the lowest level since the same per cent was recorded last May. But the survey was taken in the second full week in January, before many plants closed because of bad weather and natural gas shortages.

Thursday the Dow average dropped 5.65 to 947.14, its lowest close since it finished at 946.64 last Dec. 2.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about an 8-5 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 23.79 million shares, against 25.70 million on Thursday.

The NYSE's composite index lost .26 to 55.42.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .37 at 112.59.

State Continues . . .

in energy related layoffs, the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services said Thursday.

Albert G. Giles, bureau administrator, said all indications are that this week's initial claims load will be the highest in Ohio since early1975. Last week, claims were up 24.8 per cent over the preceding week, the bureau said.

—The American Red Cross has received 1,300 pounds of government-donated foods for emergency feeding in the Washington Court House area. The food was taken from supplies provided the state by the federal government primarily for use in school lunches, a state official said.

—A Dayton lawmaker urged Gov. James A. Rhodes on Thursday to use his authority under the present declared state of energy crisis to order mandatory controls. Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, said in a letter that the governor, not the utility companies, should make "admittedly hard" decisions to order schools and businesses closed.

—Columbia Gas of Ohio is negotiating with California gas companies to secure a portion of the 10 billion cubic feet of gas that state is making available to the hard-hit Midwest and East, Rhodes' office said.

—The state is placing quarter-page advertisements in newspapers in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma next Monday and Tuesday in an effort to find natural gas supplies for Ohio.

—IVN Dayton, DP&L said it expected to vaporize 300,000 gallons of propane gas Thursday which was bought independently by customers to supplement their natural gas supplies. DP&L officials said 100 of the 250 customers who bought propane still have some of the fuel remaining.

The gas will go to industries, schools and commercial outlets, a DP&L spokesman said. The company had stopped vaporizing their customers' propane so it could vaporize its own supply to supplement peak day natural gas demands.

"On those days when DP&L propane facilities are required to add to Columbia's (Gas Transmission Corp.) supply to meet human needs, these customers will be limited to plant protection usage," he said.

—Temperatures were expected to be a little cooler today, following Thursday's reprieve from freezing temperatures that saw readings climb to the lower 40s in southwestern Ohio.

Snow or snow flurries was predicted for most of the state today, with afternoon readings generally in the 20s and the 30s. Saturday is expected to be cloudy with highs in the 20s and lower 30s.

Ohio Highway Patrol Graduates 100th Class

The Ohio State Highway Patrol's historic 100th Academy Class graduated today in ceremonies attended by nearly 1200 friends, relatives, and special guests.

"Woody" Hayes, head football coach at Ohio State University, was the guest speaker. He addressed the audience and class of 75 graduating Highway Patrol Troopers.

Col. Adam G. Reiss, division superintendent, announced a few facts that make the 100th Class historically significant.

"This is the first class in the history of the Ohio State Highway Patrol to graduate a female Trooper," Col. Reiss said. "Tpr. Dianne L. Harris, originally of Oberlin, will be stationed at the Castalia Post on the Ohio Turnpike."

The Colonel also announced that five of the new Troopers are sons of retired, active, or deceased Highway Patrol members.

"Troopers J. G. Baughman, M. M. Manly, and F. C. Nedveski are sons of retired officers; Tpr. M. J. Szabo is the son of the late Capt. J. J. Szabo; and Tpr. D. E. Kolcum's father, Sgt. R. D. Kolcum, is stationed at Chardon."

With the graduation of Tpr. Eric M. Escola, of Canton, there will be three brothers serving on the Highway Patrol at the same time. Tpr. H. F. Escola, Jr., is stationed at Massillon and Tpr. R. E. Escola is assigned to Hiram.

Tpr. R. W. Chidester, a member of the 100th Class, is the brother of Tpr. T. G. Chidester, of the Toledo Post.

Two brothers — Troopers C. L. Booth and C. R. Booth of Columbus — graduated as classmates in the 100th Class.

Lt. Col. Chester C. Hayth, assistant superintendent, extended greetings to the audience and Director Robert M. Chiaramonte, Department of Highway Safety, addressed the group, which included a representative of each of the previous 99 graduating classes.

The oath of office was administered to the new Troopers by the Honorable Homer E. Abele, Judge of the Court of Appeals of the Fourth Appellate District.

Tpr. Steve M. Bryant of Clyde, Ohio, was chosen by classmates as class speaker.

Vance Lays Plans For Soviet Meetings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance has outlined an ambitious negotiating schedule for his upcoming trip to the Soviet Union, planning talks on general arms reduction and a possible reduction of the limits on each nation's nuclear arsenal.

In an interview Thursday, Vance also spoke of the "critical importance" of cutting back arms sales around the world, and he all but buried the "linkage" theory held dear by his predecessor, Henry A. Kissinger.

"I think there has been an overemphasis on linkage," Vance said about the concept of tying progress in one diplomatic area to conduct in another. The important questions facing the two superpowers and the world, he said, must be dealt with as separate issues.

"Take, for example, negotiations in the arms field, and more specifically, the SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty) negotiations," he said in an interview with The Associated Press and United Press International.

"I think it clearly is in the interest of both nations and in the interest of world peace for us to reach a satisfactory, negotiated settlement with them" without linking up other issues.

Vance took questions for 35 minutes, sitting comfortably at a coffee table in his State Department office. Besides SALT and arms control, Vance also clarified the Carter administraton's stand on normalizing relations with Cuba and China.

The secretary said that while no conclusions have been reached on Cuba, the United States would be willing to use talks on a new antihijacking treaty as a forum to discuss past American concerns over Havana's revolutionary policies abroad and Cuban troops in Africa.

Vance explained that what normalization of relations with China ultimately means is diplomatic recognition of the Communist government in Peking. But he cautioned, "We must also consider the question of the security of the people of Taiwan."

Although the four reporters covered these and many other issues, the major focus was on arms control — conventional and nuclear — with the Russians.

Vance listed these areas for priority discussion when he goes to Moscow on March 28:

—The SALT talks on limiting nuclear weapons.

—The "reduction of conventional arms."

—The rebirth of the Vienna negotiations on a mutual cutback of forces in Central Europe, which he said were in "doldrums" in recent years.

—"A general reduction in the transfer of arms."

Vance said the issues of the American Cruise missile system and the Soviet Backfire bomber, which have deadlocked the talks for a year, will be discussed in Moscow. He repeated President Carter's stand that these issues should not prevent a new SALT treaty.

Floods . . .

The first eight-inch snowfall in early January fell on unfrozen dry ground, according to hydrologist Thomas McPhillips, at the Cincinnnati office of the National Weather Service flood prediction center.

"We've been checking gardens as far south as Evansville, Ind. and the ground is dry and unfrozen," said McPhillips. "This will absorb the runoff. We've never had an Ohio River flood from snow only."

He said Thursday's predicted snow and rain passed to the north of the valley.

Thursday's 41-degree temperatures started thawing the Ohio Valley but the weather service said there was too much snow around to let the temperature really climb. Temperatures will get colder, however, with mid-30s Saturday and Sunday but more zero weather expected Monday.

"This doesn't mean anybody should roll over and go back to sleep," McPhillips warned. "Forecasts have been busted before."

McPhillips said rivermen and those with homes or businesses near the river should check the forecasts daily.

He said the snow on the ground has acted as insulation to keep the ground from freezing. The cool weekend temperatures will allow more melting for some runoff but the colder weather Monday should keep the river flow slow.

"The water level is low anyway. You might say we've had drought conditions although it isn't an official National Weather Service drought," McPhillips said.

Veteran rivermen like Capt. John Beatty welcomed the warming trend.

Beatty has been using his towboat to protect his properties and others between Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky by breaking up the ice.

"I find it hopeful," Beatty said. "The ice is softening and we need some runoff to raise the water level," from 26 to 31 feet, he said. Flood level at Cincinnati is 52 feet.

"This is just what we need"—a slow thawing followed by cold weather to keep the runoff even and slow, he said.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers at Louisville, Ky., had predicted Tuesday there would be no flooding.

The Corps reported Thursday that barge traffic had resumed on the river and needed fuel and salt supplies were heading upriver again although slowed by ice on the still frozen river.

Firewood Available

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Forest Service says there is free firewood, for burning in your own stove or fireplace, in the nation's 154 national forests for anyone checking first with local forest officials and getting a permit.

Permits are free and available from district ranger offices at each national forest, says Owen T. Damison of the Agriculture Department agency, with generally only dead wood allowed to be removed.

"It's been a continuing program and a very popular one since the other energy crisis" in 1973-74, and "we consider it more than just a fuel-wood thing, too. It's a real form of recreation," he said.

The wood is free only to those who intend to use it themselves.

The free wood policy extends to all national forests but some may not have it in accessible areas, Jamison said, so people first should check. Uusally, he added, people fill up trucks or cars, or use pickup trucks or campers.

Baseball Outlawed

DETROIT (AP) — Renaissance Center, the $330-million provately-financed project to help revitalize the city's downtown area, will have many attractions indoors and out when it opens in the spring — but one it will not have is a baseball field.

With 11,536 specially tinted glass windows in its 72-story hotel and four 39-story office towers, officials say there's little likelihood that the 33-acre riverfront site will provide a diamond for the Little Leaguers or any other baseball teams — and for good reason.

Group May Lose Mastodon Skeleton

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Unless the Mastodon Restoration Committee can raise $7,800, the organization could lose the huge mastodon skeleton unearthed in 1970.

Nearly two-thirds of the bones have been reconstructed, but without funds to complete it, the skeleton may have to be sold to a museum to obtain money to pay two men directing the project, a spokeswoman for the group said.

The group needs $1,800 for more materials to complete the restoration. The mastodon will be worth $30,000 when completed, said Tim Riedel of the Cleveland Musuem of Natural Hiistory.

Riedel said about 85 per cent of the specimen's bones were unearthed.

Only A Blueprint

Building in a federal budget to cover an entire fiscal year is a little like the Weather Service predicting the amount of rainfall, snow depth and mean temperature average for the next year. It is easy to collect the data on today's performance, but projecting it into many tomorrows is another matter.

Nevertheless the budget ritual goes on. President Ford's last budget message to Congress already is obsolete, more so this year since the new administration was working on revisions even before the Ford effort was submitted.

More meaningful than the specific numbers, which remain subject to constant change, is the tone the overall budget message takes. What categories of the budget are given greater or lesser emphasis than last year's? Is it expansionary in terms of consuming more of the nation's gross national output, as most recent budgets have been?

Ford's budget projections reflect a tapering off of the huge deficit in recent years—to the happy day of a surplus in the near future, and tax cuts for taxpayers unhappily pushed into higher tax brackets by inflation.

Again disregarding the changeables which go into the total, that is not a bad blueprint for the Carter administration to follow. Despite the different approaches of the two administrations, Carter also has pledged a balanced budget by 1980.

Plan Of Life

BY JIM BISHOP

The average life span among Jews when Jesus lived was 33 years. That was 20 centuries ago. It was not until the last hundred years that men of science more than doubled the average life to 70 years.

It is as though man was designed to live only as long as required to procreate and raise his young to a point of self-sufficiency. Then he expired. The Pacific salmon dies within a couple of weeks after spawning.

A female eel will swim halfway around the world to give birth near the island of Bermuda. When a lead elephant loses his powers he is ordered to the back of the line.

There is a master plan to all of this. I do not pretend to divine it. In many areas, my ignorance is exasperating. It is a matter of arithmetic to suggest that a baby one-day old is one day closer to the grave. Built into the baby are three great drives: survival, food, sex.

He must live; he must eat; he must procreate. I have seen old dogs, when the end is near, crawl into a corner and refuse food and drink. Man seldom resigns from life.

One of the best writers on the subject of aging is Albert Rosenfeld. I have not seen his new book, "Prolongevity," but I have been impressed with his thinking on the subject.

We have a greater percentage of old people than ever. And the number grows greater. Should they be useful or should we pay them to remain out of the labor market?

Rosenfeld thinks of old people as NASA does of Fly-bys. The space scientists, like gods, devise a vehicle to go into outer space to send back reliable information about Mars, Jupiter and other planets.

The gods hope their creations will not malfunction. The vehicle speeds at 25,000 miles in a black vacuum. It sends back messages. It works hard. When the final task is completed, the vehicle continues on in the universe, the gods no longer listening to it.

They do not ask it to come back and retire in a ranch house. It passes its usefulness. It may continue for many years, seeing and searching other suns and galaxies, but, while it functions, it is dead to its creators. They have new babies.

Anyone who reads this does not have a single cell that he had when he was born. The billions of tiny cubes have been replaced in every organ, every bit of tissue multitudinous times.

A rare conditoin in children is progeria. The baby is normal. At his third or fourth birthday, he looks old. He has heart attacks at age 5. The skin is wrinkled parchment; the hair is snowy and thin. They walk as though they had advanced arthritis.

It is not a disease. It's an unnatural aging condition. The victim has normal intelligence, and usually dies of deterioration at age 15. Science can do nothing for them.

Endlessly, people debate whether age is a matter of calendar years or senility. The brain, prisoner of the body, is all. The capacity to think, to love, to feel, to wonder is a three-pound mass inside the skull.

Without it, the body lies in coma. The flesh will function, but it will not know why. Scientists who have protected man from childhood and adult diseases, battle to keep the body functioning.

What would it matter if, someday, we could live to be 500 years of age if the brain lost its appreciation and understanding of living at age 80? Most of us who are over 40 have learned to live with a lessening function of the body.

It is not a great defeat to find that one cannot run fast to catch a bus, climb a tree, jump rope or make love twice a night. The organs do not quit. They slow their function a little bit each year.

The healthy mind will accommodate itself to this. Quite often, the aging mind expands its appreciation of a sunset, an act of love, the sparkling color in an infant's eyes. The brain confines its joys to the capacity of the body.

Grandma Tier died at 77. She ordered a burial dress the week before she died. Grandpa died at 78. He said he was happy to go. Grandma Bishop expired at 84, waving a priest away from her beside. "Sure," she said, chuckling, "what would I have to confess to you?"

My father went at 85. I was at some of those bedsides. None of them fought it. Can it be that there is a cool, beckoning peace on the far side of the last breath?

I wonder. I really do . . .

Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The uranium industry is warning, as the natural gas industry did in years gone by, that its reserves fall far short of the requirements being scheduled for it by energy authorities.

As a result, at least one uranium producer, the Atlas Corp., is urging a crash program of exploration and development, financed in part by huge government loans, additional tax credits and depletion allowances.

Edward R. Farley, Jr., Atlas president, said an investment of at least $18 billion will be needed to meet the nation's uranium needs during the next 25 years, for exploration, new mines and additional processing plants.

"The uranium industry is in no position to supply that kind of capital," he said.

Atlas was one of the first U.S. companies to enter the uranium mining business more than two decades ago, and now has contracts to supply yellowcake to a number of the 55 nuclear power plants in the United States.

He said the inability of his and other companies to meet requirements could result in serious social and economic dislocations, possibly resulting in power shortages, higher electricity bills and slowed economic growth.

Under his plan, the federal government would put up a large part of the $18 billion he feels is needed.

"Companies, individuals, partnerships, whatever they be, would have to prove that on a property there was a reasonable prospect of a commercial ore body" before obtaining funds, he said.

If the explorers discover uranium they would be required to repay the loans, but if their efforts resulted in failure the loans would be forgiven.

The federal government has been conducting an airplane survey over a 700,000-squaremile area of the country in search of deposits. The information is fed into computers to pinpoint possible exploration sites for private industry.

Most uranium deposits presently are situated in the western part of the country, but known deposits exist in Tennessee and North Carolina, and a recent government survey suggests there may be ore in Pennsylvania and Maine.

Current, somewhat vague plans call for nuclear energy to provide about 15 per cent of the nation's electricity by 1985, about double the current level, with the percentage rising to 50 per cent or so by the year 2000.

Farley maintains the uranium reserves simply do not exist to meet that schedule, and that "the annual gap between our production of uranium and our needs is growing every year."

Ashland Sets Output

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — Ashland Petroleum Co. is modifying an asphalt refinery in Findlay to produce fuel oils that are in short supply in Ohio, company President Robart T. McCowan said today.

McCowan said the plant will begin processing 8,000-10,000 barrels of petroleum products daily as soon as employes can safely restart the facility, normally closed during winter months when asphalt is not sold.

"We are hopeful that operations can begin in the next two weeks," he said.

McCowan said some of the unfinished petroleum stocks produced at Findlay will be moved to Ashland's Canton, Ohio, refinery for further processing.

The Findlay plant's products will include kerosene, light fuel oils and heavier industrial fuels, he said.

To start the plant, Ashland stopped normally scheduled maintenance and is arranging for crude oil deliveries to the plant.

McCowan said he is restarting the plant after discussions with Gov. James A. Rhodes and the governor's energy staff concerning the fuel oil shortage.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Feb. 4, the 35th day of 1977. There are 330 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1789, George Washington was elected the first president of the United States, with all 69 presidential electors casting their votes for the general.

On this date:

In 1861, delegates from six seceding Southern states formed the Confederacy at Montgomery, Ala.

In 1887, the Interstate Commerce Commission was established.

In 1945, President Franklin Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and the Soviet leader, Joseph Stalin, began a conference at Malta.

In 1948, the island of Ceylon became a free, self-governing dominion within the British Commonwealth.

In 1961, terrorist attacks broke out in the Portuguese African territory of Angola.

In 1975, the U.S. Justice Department proposed stronger measures to prohibit the employment of illegal aliens.

Ten years ago: A U.S. presidential adviser, Walt Rostow, said a diplomatic move was under way to determine whether North Vietnam was seriously interested in peace talks.

Five years ago: Britain and several other nations formally recognized the new state of Bangladesh, formerly East Pakistan.

One year ago: India's parliament voted itself another year in office by postponing scheduled elections.

Today's birthday: Feminist Betty Friedan is 56.

Thought for today: History is, indeed, little more than the register of the crimes, follies and misfortunes of mankind. — Edward Gibbon, English historian, 1737-1794.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I'm miserable with pain in my ear. Doctors haven't been able to find the reason. One of them thought that my teeth might be causing the pain in my ear. My teeth are in perfect condition.

Mrs. C.M., La.

Dear Mrs. M.:

I vote with the doctor who thinks that your teeth could be the cause. Actually, this is not due to the condition of your teeth themselves. Rather, it may be due to the bite, or the occlusion, of your upper and lower teeth.

In the absence of any obvious disease of the ear, changes within the structure of the jaw joint are always considered as a possible source of pain deep within the ear.

The jaw joint is a highly sensitive one and reflects any imbalance in the bite of the teeth. A small sac in the jaw joint is known as a "bursa," similar to the one that is present in the shoulder, the elbow or the knee. The bursa can become inflamed and irritated when the bite is off-balance.

The nerve that goes to the tender jaw joint has branches that run deep to the ear drum. Pain may extend to it, and even down the neck and shoulders.

There are now many refined techniques by which the jaw joint can be studied by the dentists specializing in this particular field.

Only then can the cause of your pain be identified and effectively treated.

Can a fatty growth on the arm become cancerous? I worry.

Mrs. L. T., Maine

Dear Mrs. T.:

Stop worrying. Fatty tumors, or lipomas, are benign non-cancerous growths. It is highly improbable that this type of tumor can ever become malignant.

Nevertheless, it would be wise if this were removed so that you could be free of the anxiety you have about it.

The operation is simple and safe. It is usually done under local anesthesia. The scare is insignificant. The benefits from a cosmetic and psychological point of view are great.

My own experience is that patients seem to "concentrate" on these tumors, they constantly touch them and "examine" them while their level of anxiety continues to grow.

Get it out. Separate yourself from the lipoma and your fears.

Death Row Wedding Nixed By Official

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Two convicted murderers who requested a Death Row wedding to make their 21-month-old daughter legitimate have been turned down by a prison official who says it would "serve no useful purpose."

Louie Wainwright, secretary of the Florida Department of Prisoner Rehabilitation, said Wednesday that he's not sure the inmates are sincere, that the wedding would cost too much, that it might endanger the public and that the girl's illegitimacy could be solved by adoption after her parents are executed.

Jessie Tafero, 30, and Sonia Jacobs, 28, imprisoned 55 miles apart, were sentenced to die in the electric chair for the murders a year ago of a state highway patrolman and a visiting constable from Ontario, Canada.

Their daughter, born nine months before the crime, is being cared for in California by Miss Jacobs' parents, who have not been identified.

The prisoners said this week that they would like to be married, just to give their daughter a name.

Wainwright said illegitimacy is one of the few grounds on which the state will permit a marriage between inmates, but he said that if the young couple had been sincere in their wish to marry, they could have done so during the 18 months between the conception of the child and their arrest.

A marriage now, he said, "would require an inappropriate expenditure of tax funds.

"Security problems inherent in the transportation of either inmate to a wedding site would entail an unjustifiable risk of danger to the public," he said.

Miss Jacobs and Tafero are appealing their convictions. But Tafero said they wanted to marry in case the appeals fail and their child becomes an orphan.

Survival Budget Asked By Solon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Democratic chairman of the House Finance Committee called today for a "survival budget," based on cuts in state spending over the next two years to offset the effects of the current energy crisis.

Rep. Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-88-Bourneville, noted that Gov. James A. Rhodes had submitted a 1977-79 spending plan that was termed a "continuation budget."

"I'm going a step further and calling for a survival budget," Shoemaker said. "There's going to be some cuts beyond what the administration calls a continuation budget."

Then, at a news conference, Shoemaker went further and said spending cuts may be made below current levels for state departments.

He refused to identify specific targets, but hinted that the Environmental Protection Agency and the Department of Economic and Community Development would be called on the carpet.

Education and welfare, favorites of the Democratic legislature, may also face tough scrutiny.

"Those are the two big items," Shoemaker said when asked if cuts were possible in those areas.

"If a million people are out of work for any extensive time," Shoemaker asked in reference to the natural gas shortage, "what's that going to do to our income tax collections and sales tax?"

Shoemaker said Rhodes had "taken the easy road" to a balanced budget by leaving out proposals he had voiced in public statements and making unrealistic assumptions. He charged that the governor would have been unable to present a balanced budget if he had included all of the proposals made in his State of the State message last month.

6 Holdover Workers Fired

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) Six holdover employes of the Democratic Gilligan administration were notified of their dismissals today by the Public Utilities Commission.

The three-member agency switched to Republican control Tuesday when the term expired of Sally Bloomfield, also an appointee of former Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Mrs. Bloomfield was succeeded as commissioner by William S. Newcomb Jr. who along with Commission Chairman C. Luther Heckman make up the new 2-1 Republican majority.

Those notified of their dismissals following a staff meeting were Elaine Doyle, a PUCO lobbyist; John Hofstetter, chief of the motor carrier enforcement division; John Gordon, director of the transportation division; William Montross, budget officer; Fred Waltz, municipal assistance coordinator, and Ambrose Parks, the commission's chief fiscal officer.

Those let go were without civil service protection in their appointive positions.

Some New CBers Prove To Be Pain In The Ear

WASHINGTON (AP) — To many experienced Citizens Band users, the new CBers who got their radios for Christmas are about as welcome as a channel full of static.

"Break, how about a radio check?" says the inexperienced voice in the middle of your conversation. Or, another asking, "What's your twenty?" just as you've made proper contact with a fellow CBer.

"Christmas Presents," as the new CBers are referred to, seldom in polite tones, often start their radio experience on the wrong foot because they don't know CB procedures.

We could have followed the same path several years ago when we took up CBing, but our initial hesitancy to talk on the air caused us to spend several weeks of listening before we first keyed the mike.

We learned a lot about CBing during this period and, if you have the patience or similar bashfulness, you might benefit from a short period of monitoring, or "copying the mail" as CBers call it, to see how its done.

If not, some of the older CBers are more than willing to lend a hand to their new channel comrades, and hand that often results in new friendships as well as relieving ill feelings on the frequencies.

But before keying the mike and asking the channel for its patience, the new CBer should remember a few basic rules:

—Before asking for a break, listen for a minute to see whether the channel is clear. If not, wait and break only between conversations. And the break should be given only by the last person to sign off or to end his conversation. Any other CBer giving a break usually causes more than one person to believe its their turn and adds to the confusion on the already congested channels.

Always use your call letters with your handle at the beginning and at the end of your transmissions. Besides adhering to FCC rules, you're giving more recognition to your handle which probably is used by more than one CBer in your area.

Always call for a specific station when you get the break. There's nothing more irritating to others on the channel than to have someone get the break and say, "How do you read me?" Who's he talking to, and which of the many stations on the air should respond?

—Abide by FCC regulations that limit conversations to no more than five minutes and, where possible, make your transmissions as brief as you can. No one likes a ratchetjaw or bucketmouth, as long-winded CBers are called. After your transmission, FCC rules require that you wait one minute before beginning a new one.

—And don't show your inexperience by breaking and asking for a "radio check" or a "10-36." If you're testing a new radio, or have a problem, address your query to a specific station and ask for its help. You'll usually get it.

—Finally, remember Channel 9 is reserved for emergency and road information calls. And regardless of what channel you're monitoring, stand by for any emergency call, or 10-33. It could save a life.

Senior Food and Fellowship is in desperate need of volunteers for transportation, kitchen help and clerical. Anyone with a few hours to volunteer please call 474-8617 or see Martha Wiggins at the center.

G.E.D. CLASSES

HOMEMAKER HEALTH AIDE

We have at PICCA a growing homemaker Health aide program. This program is for the elderly, sick, and handicapped that might need a little help in their homes so that they may remain there rather than go into a resthome, hospital or move in with their families. We can help them with their baths and take regular blood-pressure checks. We can help with light housecleaning, budgeting, counseling, filling out those tons of papers we all have to fill out at one time or another. We can provide transportation to the grocery or we will go for them. Our goal is to make life a little easier and a little happier for those that we come into contact with, when they have no one else that they can depend on.

The fee for this service is based on a state-set sliding scale with no fee for those who meet state established low-income guidelines. If any one knows of someone who might be interested in our program, or if anyone has any questions, concerning this service, please call the PICCA office. 474-6881 or 474-7452 and ask for Norma or Violet. All inquiries will be kept confidential.

PERSONAL ADVOCACY

Diane Berger is a new face at the PICCA office. She is co-ordinating the Personal Advocacy Program for Developmental Disabilities in Pickaway and Fayette Counties. This is a project of the Paint Valley Mental Health and Mental Retardation (648) Board.

Citizen Advocate Volunteers will be matched with persons who have epilepsy, autism, cerebral palsy or mental retardation.

Personal Advocacy is a way in which interested citizens can show their concern in the most meaningful manner by forming close personal relationships with a person who has a developmental disability.

The volunteer can help them realize their full potential as individuals by doing things with their protege rather than just doing things for him.

Those who are interested in becoming citizen advocates can call Mrs. Berger at 474-6881.

Indiana Gets Federal Aid

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Federal assistance can start trickling into Indiana now that President Carter has declared a state of emergency because of last week's blizzard and intense cold.

The President acted Wednesday on a request by Gov. Otis R. Bowen. A second plea by Bowen, for Carter to declare Indiana a major disaster area, is pending, according to a spokesman for the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration.

One of the most lasting effects of the coldest January in state history is a severe shortage of such fuels as natural gas and kerosene. More than 50,000 workers have been laid off because of cutbacks in natural gas to industry.

Carter's declaration makes farmers, businessmen, cities and towns eligible for federal money to recover losses from the cold winter and energy shortage.

The first five counties declared eligible for help are Cass, LaGrange, Fulton Jay and St. Joseph. More will be named later.

The average farm in the United States is a little bigger than half an acre.

What to do if the gas goes off...

The coldest winter in more than a hundred years has caused massive use of gas and more winter lies ahead with its continued threat of additional extremely cold weather. Columbia Gas is doing everything it can to prevent the loss of gas service to residential customers. However, since a gas outage is a possibility, here are the things you should do in that event.

1. Turn off the valves ahead of each gas appliance if possible.
2. Turn off the gas shutoff valve immediately ahead of the gas meter.
3. Use all auxiliary methods of heating such as electric heaters, fireplaces, etc.
4. If there is a possibility of freezing, drain all water lines. To do this, turn off the water supply valve for the house, and open all faucets and drain water heater, leaving drain valve open at bottom of heater.
5. Take precautions so any standing water in drain lines or bathroom fixtures will not freeze.
6. Drain hot water or steam-heating equipment.
7. Stay at home, but if you must leave your home, provide entrance for the gas man who must have access to the meter and appliances. Leave a note on the front door or gas meter, telling him where you can be reached, so that gas service can be restored to your home as soon as possible.
8. Help your neighbors. If a neighbor is unable to turn off his gas or does not have the tools, give him a hand. The Gas Company may be unable to respond promptly to each individual request.
9. Call the Gas Company only if the odor of gas is detected and you are unable to turn off the main gas valve, or if gas is detected outside the home.
10. Stay tuned to your nearest radio or television station for up-to-the-minute information on the situation.

Keep this information available for handy reference. Additional copies are available at your local Columbia Gas office.

The above message is in accordance with the order of the Ohio Public Utilities Commission dated January 26, 1977.

News Of Interest To Women

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

How To Get Kids To Visit Grandma

DEAR ABBY: I have a dear mother who lives about an hour's drive from here. She's blind, but very cheerful and mentally alert. I phone her every day. She lives with a housekeeper and loves to have company.

When she had her sight, she couldn't do enough for my children. She sewed for them, bought them gifts and always made sure there were goodies in her house. Now the children are teenagers, and I have to beg them to visit their grandmother because it is so "boring" there, there's nothing to do there, etc.

My husband and I visit her as often as possible. We realize that our kids are involved with friends and activities, so we don't expect them to accompany us on every visit, but is it too much to expect them to visit her once a month?

They read your column daily, Abby. I can bet my bottom dollar that you'll agree with me, but if the kids hear it from Dear Abby, maybe they'll realize that Mom and Dad are right.

ASKING

DEAR ASKING: Your children are old enough to realize that it's a mark of maturity to do things (without whining) that aren't particularly fascinating but are well worth the effort because of the pleasure it gives others. Visiting grandparents falls into that category.

A suggestion for youngsters who resist visiting elderly relatives because it's "boring": Interview the old folks. Ask questions about relatives who preceded you, how things were back in the "olden days". You'll learn some interesting facts, and you'll find that those visits will be rewarding to you and the old folks.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 17-year-old girl and my problem is I'm flat. My mother thinks that if a girl is flat, she shouldn't wear a padded bra because it's like false advertising. I have a part-time job, so I bought myself a few padded bras, and when my mother saw them, she went beserk! She took the bras back to the store, said they were the "wrong kind" and got my money back.

Abby, being flat-chested really bothers me. When I can afford it and I'm on my own, the first thing I'm going to do is get silicone implants.

In the meantime, I'd sure appreciate if you would back me up and say that some girls wear padded bras so they'll look better in clothes and not as "false advertising." Thanks

PLENTY OF NOTHING

DEAR PLENTY: I'm on your side. I'm also behind you concerning what you don't have in front of you. Lotsa luck.

DEAR ABBY: I am a directory assistance operator in Pittsburgh, and until I started working for Bell Telephone I didn't know there were so many rude, inconsiderate and thoughtless people in the world.

In the first place, wouldn't you think a person who wants to have a telephone number would have the sense enough to have a pencil in his hand when he calls? No way. They call us FIRST, and then asks us to wait until they find a pencil.

Also when we ask them how to spell a name, they will say, "If I knew how to spell it, I'd find it myself!"

When we do find a number, do they say, "Thank you"? No, they just slam down the receiver!

One more thing, Abby. Will you please ask adults NOT to ask their very young children to call for them? One thing that drives a telephone operator up a wall is a kid who cannot be heard or understood.

Even if this doesn't make your column, it did me a lot of good just to be able to get this off my chest.

PITTSBURGH OPERATOR

DEAR OPERATOR: Glad to oblige. It's time someone gave a little recognition to that vast faceless army of unthanked heros and heroines.

Gas May Run Out By March 31

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohioans could be without natural gas in their home by the latter part of March unless new hopes that the federal government can help are realized, Gov. James A. Rhodes and state energy official say.

The new hopes surfaced late Wednesday with final approval by Congress of an emergency law which permits President Carter to reallocate natural gas among the states for residential and other top priority uses.

Rhodes immediately sent Carter a telegram asking him to provide Ohio with an additional seven billion cubic feet, saying it is the minimum needed by major gas suppliers to keep homes warm for the remainder of the winter season, until April 1.

C. Luther Heckman, chairman of the public utilities commission, indicated seven billion cubic feet is a few days or perhaps a week's supply for major firms which advised Rhodes of their situations by telegram earlier Wednesday.

The chairman said it was not possible to nail down a date on which Ohio would be out of gas, because of variables such as the weather and the success of appeals for conservation. But he said if the worst happens "it would be the latter part of March."

Heckman said the seven billion cubic feet estimate was based on replies to telegrams the governor sent Tuesday to Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., East Ohio Gas Co., Dayton Power & Light Co., Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co., and some other smaller companies operating in Ohio.

Columbia estimated its "shortfall" at nearly four billion cubic feet and DP&L at 2½ billion. Cincinnati Gas & Electric said it could probably meet demands for so-called "One Priority" customers, including homes and essential services, until the end of the winter season.

However, it said if the weather turns out 15 per cent colder than normal, which seems probable based on long range forecasts, then CG&E would be about one billion cubic feet short, the company said.

East Ohio, which serves 18 counties in the northeast part of the state, reported it could probably break even for the remainder of the winter.

Teacher Wins Ohio Lottery; Gets $190,000

CLEVELAND (AP) — Toledo school teacher Juanita Terrell won $190,000 in the Ohio lottery Thursday night, with a chance to boost her winnings in a return engagement next week.

Mrs. Terrell won in the Pot O Gold game, which gives top winers two chances at a top prize of $250,000 under a new format.

The 52-year-old teacher, whose husband, William, is a maintenance man at Bunting Brass and Bronze Co., said she expects to keep on working at Warren school, where she has a preschool class.

Mrs. Terrell said she almost didn't buy the ticket she won with. She said she had gone to the store to get slacks for her daughter, Wanda, 12, and "I had left the register and was on my way out.

"But I had some change in my hand," she added, "so I went back in and bought one ticket."

Last week's big Pot O Gold winner, Marie Kerr of Lima, got a second chance at the big money game had to settle for $9,400 Thursday night. Added to last week's $45,000, that boosted her total winnings to $54,400.

Top winner in the Double Play game with $51,000 was Russell Prater of Willard. Rick Foss of Mansfield won $26,000 in Double Play, and Lafayette Gross of Columbus, Ind. took the third prize of $11,000.

Other Pot O Gold winners included Willie Hollin of Cincinnati, $8,500; Sherman Householder of Bremen, $9,300; Darrell Fisher, St.Marys, $6,500, and Victor Edwards, Springfield, $7,700.

Strippers Get Chilly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Baby, it's cold inside! Nobody knows that better than the strippers at the Troc Theater, who are taking it all off these nights in 59-degrees temperatures.

"Somebody ought to go out there in a set of thermal underwear with a drop seat and strip out of them," suggested Lee Ann, one of the entertainers at the 110-year-old burlesque house. "Maybe we could dance to 'Frosty the Snowman.' "

"I caught a really bad cold the first two days they turned the heat down," said stripper Virgo Lamont "I came off after my act and I was sweating. Then I felt the chill. I started sniffling, then sneezing. I missed a show and had to go to the doctor's to get a shot.."

Troc manager Bob Stephens said that to save on natural gas, he has to set the thermostat as low as he dares. A newsman's thermometer read 59 at the end of the runway where the girls peel chillingly bare.

"I'm depending on the audience to provide their own heat," Stephens said. Few of the estimated 20 patrons on hand for an evening show this week took their coats off. The lobby was 56 degrees.

Last weekend, Ms. Ann, 27, said she knew there was a good size crowd on hand, "but I couldn't see anybody. Then I saw they were all in the back gathered around the radiators."

Firm Buys Private Gas

CLEVELAND (AP)—True Temper Corp. says it will sign a contract with Joseph Smith to buy all the natural gas he can produce from the well on his farm near Wadsworth.

The 75-year-old Smith had balked at selling his gas to East Ohio Gas Co., which he said offered $1.40 per 1,000 cubic feet and refused his demand that the contract be kept open for renegotiation.

True Temper's energy resource coordinator, Donald Densmore, said Wednesday the company will pay Smith $2 per 1,000 cubic feet under a contract that can be renegotiated next year.

Densmore said the 100,000 to 200,000 cubic feet of gas per day from Smith's farm will be piped via East Ohio Gas lines to Saybrook in Ashtabula County.

For Smith, who will have to pay for half a mile of pipeline, the contract could mean income up to $146,000 a year, and for True Temper it could mean getting workers back on the job at the Saybrook forge that has been idled by the natural gas cutbacks.

In 1834, E.D. Howe published Mormonism Unveiled, attacking the Mormon community at Kirkland, and it helped fan the antagonism against the church in Ohio.—AP

Economic Recovery To Be Big Carter Problem

Editor's Note: Most world statesmen like to engage in "high diplomacy" meaning lofty talk about big East-West or North-South issues avoiding war, saving peace. There also is the "low diplomacy" needing nuts-and-bolts arrangements for trade, money, raw materials touching the lives of millions. In the second of a two-part series an AP correspondent lists issues of "low diplomacy" Carter must stoop to conquer.

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's first international task after getting his home front moving will be to confer with world leaders on a strategy for global economic recovery.

He is planning swift action to meet with the heads of the British, West German, French, Canadian, Japanese and Italian governments either in Bermuda or in London by the spring.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale already has been assigned to make fact-finding missions to Europe and Asia within days to prepare the work-programs for such a summit parley. First he is visiting Bonn, Paris and London in late January, then early February to Tokyo and one or two other points.

The aim of the summit will be to produce coordinated programs for worldwide economic recovery.

It won't be easy.

Chief concern of America's partners is that Carter's package of tax cuts and job promotion — totaling about $30 billion over two years — won't be enough to prime the international pump of recovery. Especially at a time of grumbling that the wealthy West Germans and Japanese seem unwilling to spend more in the shared interallied interest.

The noncommunist nations of Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America pin high hopes on Carter's capacity to lead the United States, and therefore their world out of the slump conditions imperiling their social systems.

Against a background of chronic regional and national rivalries Carter almost certainly is going to find dealing with foreign leaders will be tougher than presiding over the affairs of the state of Georgia.

He may well hear, for instance, complaints from the nine European Common Market countries that Japan imported roughly the same value of goods from the United States as it did from their group last year. They didn't like this.

He is almost sure to be told that West Germany, with perhaps the strongest economy in Europe, is beginning to dominate not only trade in Allied Europe but also its military effort. This is reviving old and bitter memories of the war years.

One sure subject of worried discussion on the summit agenda concerns the West's policy of providing credits for the Soviet Union and its East European Communist friends. Right now that bloc owes the West more than $40 billion — a huge credit risk in anyone's terms.

There is a big argument over whether it's wise to finance the Communist nations with money, technology and capital goods leaving them free to indulge in such adventures as Angola. The counter-view to that is that export-hungry countries like Britain, Italy, France need the business they get from East Eruope to maintain employment at acceptable levels.

Other major topics down for summit discussion:

1. How to unify the policies of consumer countries against the challenge of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) which has piled up $142 billion of surplus profits since 1973 by hiking oil prices fivefold.

2. Buildup of an emergency trust fund within the 24-nation Organizatinn for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) to help member-states in grave financial trouble. The United States under ex-President Ford has undertaken to pitch in with about one-fourth of the target total of $26 billion.

3. What action to take to phase out the debts owed by poorer countries to the West. The annual total of debt repayments now exceeds $20 billion because developing countries have been so hard hit by rocketing oil prices. They have to borrow more just to repay their debts.

4. Finally the leaders must take a long, hard look at the world's money system itself because it has been in disarray since ex-President Nixon floated the dollar, and disconnected it from gold, in 1971.

This has meant that primary producing countries have been unable to count on stable prices for their raw materials.

Most of the industrialized, rich nations of the world are in the northern hemisphere and, in the main are white. Most of the poorer, developing states which once were colonies, are in the southern hemisphere, and mainly comprise nonwhite nations.

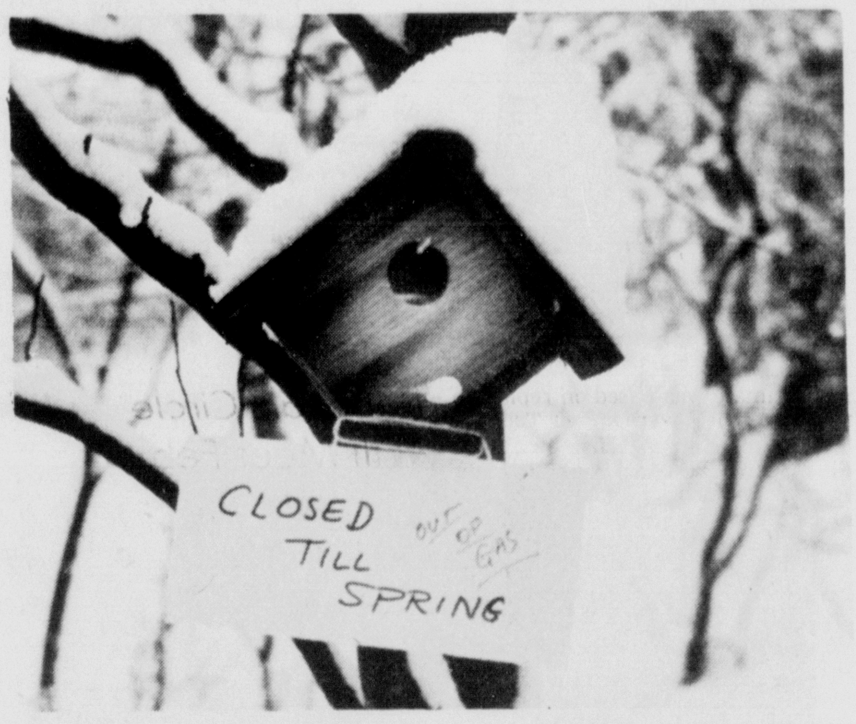
Thus the North-South dialogue, or confrontation, has developed on racial lines. The southern, nonwhite nations are calling for a new economic order. The northern countries are alive to their demands. There are grave difficulties to be settled. Some of the questions:

—How should trade, income, resources be distributed fairly?

—Can dwindling supplies of raw materials be allocated on a fair basis without runaway price increases?

—In an age of increasing food and raw material shortages how are the resources of the seabed going to be evenly shared when most of the technology for extraction and exploitation is in northern, or white, hands?

—With science and technology bounding ahead what sort of system can be devised to insure that the superpowers do not, for strategic reasons, begin manipulating the weather and the environment?



CUT BACK — The recent natural gas curtailments have a more far-reaching effect than was first anticipated. The fine feathered folks that inhabited this dwelling must have been in the gas company's "large user" category, because they turned back the thermostat to "maintenence levels" and took off for Florida. Roundtown resident Ned Harden made this discovery and decided to share it with the Herald.

Religious Pizzas?

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — A group of federal penitentiary inmates here has filed a $110, 000 suit for the right to hold religious pizza parties in the prison chapel.

The 52 Marquette Prison inmates are memers of the Universal Life Church (ULC), a California-based group famous for its mail-order ordination of ministers for a $2 fee. They won recognition as a legitimate religious congregation in 1975.

ULC member Leonard H. Lundberg, a convict serving a life term for murder who represents the group, says the pizzas actually are part of a "feast day" held by the group to commemorate Christ.

"It doesn't matter if we order a couple of canned hams, a pizza or whatever, as long as the ritual of the church is involved," Lundberg wrote in an official grievance filed with the Michigan Corrections Department. "What's the difference between pizzas and wine and wafers? Whatever a group feels commemorates the body of God in Christ should be allowed."

State officials seem to be having a hard time taking the suit seriously. Max E. Simon, an assistant state attorney general, called it "the case of the pious pizza" and said the inmates had "a lot of crust" to file suit.

The world's first long distance telephone call dialed by a caller without the help of an operator was made on Nov. 10, 1951.

Young Visits Zanzibar

ZANZIBAR, Tanzania (AP) — Ambassador Andrew Young joined 500 merrymakers at a "people's club" and danced some hustle-like steps with islanders holding a week-long political bash.

Awaiting the arrival today of leaders of a number of African nations, President Carter's black envoy walked over to the largest social center in Zanzibar Thursday night with the U.S. ambassador to Tanzania, James Spain; Tanzania's deputy foreign minister, Isaac Sepety, and members of Young's party from Washington.

The 44-year-old Georgian moved onto the crowded dance floor for a few steps of what one member of his party called "a sort of stiff hustle."

The residents of Zanzibar, an island known for its spices and beaches as well as its former trade in slaves, were curious about Young and the other black Americans with him but kept their distance. Moslem women cloaked in flowing black robes and men in Western slacks waved and smiled as the party passed through the dusty, steaming streets.

Coal Available Through County

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Belmont County residents who are out of fuel aren't out of luck as well following an agreement between St. Clairsville Mayor Ed White and the North American Coal Co.

The village bought 20 tons of coal from the firm which it will make available to county residents who need it at a cost of $1.50.

People who need the coal were asked to get it themselves at the Belmont County fairgrounds, but the county said it would deliver the coal to persons who could not get to the fairgrounds.

Military Life, Faith Intertwined

NEW YORK (AP) —The top adviser on religious affairs in the armed forces, Maj. Gen. Henry J. Meade, says military life these days in some ways is more sustaining to faith than the mixed civilian environment.

"There are better opportunities for it," he says. "The very way we're structured lends greater acceptability to religious involvement."

In contrast to the varied and fluid civilian atmosphere, he notes that "the military is an ordered, disciplined society," and he adds:

"People who opt to live in it do so not only for the organizational values but for the spiritual values that it provokes."

Meade, the Air Force chief of chaplains and also chairman of the Armed Forces chaplains board including the Army and Navy chiefs of chaplains, says military life also stirs closer cross-denominational unity.

"We're the ecumenical model," he said in an interview. "We were the pioneers for it as far back as the ministry was a viable presence in the military forces."

And that goes back to the beginnings of the country, two centuries ago, when Gen. George Washington, under authorization of the Continental Congress, assigned chaplains for the regiments of the American Revolution.

From that time into the present, Meade said, ecumenical cooperation among the different major faiths, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish, has been the basis of the military chaplaincy.

He said that both for the chaplains themselves and among the military personnel, the close association in religious and other activities serves to overcome misconceptions between the different faiths and build understanding and common bonds."We use the same physical facilities for religious services," he said. "We're in daily communication with each other. We work together in counselling and on so many humanitarian projects.

"In these circumstances, the old provincialisms and misapprehensions give way very rapidly to a spirit of trust and sharing."

Meade, 51, a Roman Catholic and a vigorous, warm-mannered veteran of 20 years in the Air Force, said the interdenominational ties are particularly enhanced among the chaplains working directly with those of other faiths. "Respect is buttressed by mutual, firsthand knowledge, " he said. "We see each other as colleagues and coworkers."

There currently are 3,096 military chaplains on active duty, endorsed by their denominations to the various military branches, 1,451 in the Army, 800 in the Navy and 845 in the Air Force. They serve a farspread military force of 2,087,000 — 787,000 in theArmy, 718,000 in the Navy including the Marines, and 583,000 in the Air Force, plus their families, which more than triples the total. Meade, from Brookline, Mass., and a priest in the Boston archdiocese for six years before joining the Air Force in 1957, noted that chaplains are directly responsible to their endorsing denominations.

Wheat is the chief cereal crop for both man and animals.

IT'S PERSONAL

People keep teaching their children to say their prayers at bedtime, but how many do it themselves?

Maybe sometimes they pray in the darkness, silently, so that no one will know. But why the secrecy? Because prayer is a very deep, personal kind of expression? Because we reveal ourselves through it?

Even those of us who have gotten away from the custom of going to church every Sunday, who think they've put religion down the line on their list of priorities, turn back swiftly when in trouble, saying, "Dear God," first of all.

So why wait? In church you can pray alone or with others, in darkness or in light; but always in your own way—with a blessed sense of belonging.

NOT JUST A PICKET LINE — Thousands of state employes fill a square in Rome during a demonstration, as three million workers struck all across Italy, affecting communications, transportation, schools, public offices and hospitals. The walkout was called by unions to press the government for new contracts for the various categories.

Couple's Togetherness In Air

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Clark and Betty Everest are likely to be found Sundays spinning, rolling, looping or diving their funny-looking little airplane as they practice precision aerobatics.

And please, don't call them stunt pilots. That term, guaranteed to bring a scowl to Betty's face, is reserved for those who indulge in the risky business of flying under bridges or cracking up planes for the benefit of movie cameras.

The Everests take their flying seriously — so seriously that Betty was the lone woman member of the U.S. team at the World Aerobatic Championships held near Kiev in the Soviet Union last summer.

"I decided I wanted to make the team, so I went out and practiced — a lot," she says. "They weren't going to take any women, so I had to show them I could compete." She showed the judges who awarded her the bronze medal in the women's division. And she got a doll with an inscription in Ukrainian, though she's not sure what she got it for.

"I think I got it for being the youngest competitor but I can't find anybody who speaks Ukrainian," she says. "When they presented the awards they did it in Russian with no translation."

When not rolling the Everests' Pitts Special biplane about the sky, Betty, a soft-voiced 29-year-old brunette, rolls pills for a Boulder pharmacy. Separated from her airplane, she gives little indication she specializes in a type of flying that leaves behind the faint of heart, not to mention stomach.

Although some aerobatic pilots fly airshows, Betty and Clark eschew the practice, saving their time and money for competitive flying.

The key to competitive aerobatics is precision. Loops must be round, not egg-shaped. Lines must be straight and all maneuvers must be performed in an imaginary "box" 3,330 feet long, 2,600 feet wide and 3,500 feet wide.

"It's about like gymnastics or diving," says Clark. "Each maneuver is assigned a difficulty factor and is scored on a scale of 1-to-10."

When going to competitive events, one of the Everests flies the tiny but powerful Pitts while the other drives the car with the luggage and the couple's two large, friendly canines of diluted Collie ancestry. Betty does the competitive flying while Clark does the coaching, calling his observations into a tape recorder for replay after his wife is on the ground.

Clark got into aerobatics after finding straight and level flying too boring. Betty was a flight instructor at a Colorado flying school and decided to try aerobatics — and that's when she found Clark four years ago.

"You see there was this guy with a cute little yellow airplane for sale. ..." she says with a broad grin.

Aerobatics are popular in the Denver-Boulder area. Ken Nicholas, who teaches aerobatics at a flying school at the Boulder airport, estimates about 100 persons in the area bat around the region's air with various degrees of enthusiasm. Many of his students are airline pilots looking for a change from the mundane job of getting a big airplane from one place to another, he says.

Pressure Now Off For Sen. Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — For Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the political pressure is off — at least for now. He's no longer seen as the Democrats' permanent, floating prospective presidential candidate, and he likes it this way.

Puffing the stub of a small cigar, Kennedy catalogued the issues on which he means to be heard — which doesn't preclude many — and said he thinks he can be more effective in dealing with them now.

With President Carter in the White House, and the Democratic course firmly set for at least four years and probably eight, Kennedy's role is clear, too. It is in the Senate.

Before Carter, Kennedy said, the positions he took and the programs he pushed were constantly suspect, assessed as moves that might be part of a coming presidential campaign.

He constantly denied it, repeatedly foreswore presidential candidacy, but the suspicion persisted. No longer, though.

"Being a senator, the issue or cause that you're interested in may not be as highlighted, but there may be more credibility," Kennedy said.

Of course the senator from Massachusetts, beginning his third full term at age 44, does have a political base and national recognition that can highlight his causes.

Furthermore, he is not ruling out national candidacy forever. He simply isn't discussing it.

"I look at the here and now and the foreseeable future," he said.

"We've got a president, and I think he's gotten off to a splendid start. I think he'll be reelected," Kennedy said.

If Carter is re-elected, and if it is with Vice President Walter F. Mondale, that takes care of the Democratic ticket through 1984. At that point, Mondale, now 49, probably would be in a commanding position to claim Democratic leadership.

Kennedy knows that.

"I think I've been rather philosophical about public life, and I'll continue to be," he said.

In the Senate and in appearances elsewhere, Kennedy said, he intends to press such issues as national health insurance, welfare and tax reform, arms control, energy problems, economic measures.

He is about to become chairman of the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee, and he sees that as a forum for action that could affect energy and economic measures. He is chairman of the board of governors of the Office of Technology Assessment, a congressional research agency, and he wants to make that more active. He heads a health subcommittee, serves on the joint economic committee.

Reagan Attacks Carter's Pardon

TORONTO (AP) — Ronald Reagan says President Carter's pardon of draft evaders destroyed the process of justice and may "haunt us later."

Reagan, in Canada for a speech to a local political association, told a news conference Thursday that draft evaders and military deserters broke the law and should receive no leniency.

Carter's pardon, announced last month, did not apply to deserters.

The former California governor, who lost the Republican nomination to former President Gerald R. Ford at last year's GOP convention, said he thought Watergate emerged as the principal issue in the last days of the presidential campaign.

He said he expected a more balanced view of Watergate to emerge after former President Richard M. Nixon publishes his memoirs and Nixon's interviews with David Frost are telecast in May.

Motorcycle Helmet Law Fought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio may join this year with nine other states which have repealed laws that require motorcyclists to wear helmets.

At least, Rep. Terry Tranter, D-24 Cincinnati, has high expectations for his newly introduced bill. He believes he has convincing research data to use against those who might oppose him, he said.

The two-term Hamilton County lawmaker said he thinks the compulsory helmet law, which became effective in Ohio on Jan. 1, 1968, is in violation not only of individual rights but also the rights of states under the U.S. Constitution.

He even indicated it may be safer, at least in some situations, to ride without a helmet.

Tranter said he expects his bill to "get some flak" from some members of the House Highways and Highway Safety Committee, who believe safety factors are such as to justify the existing law.

He said he doesn't know yet what the official position of the highway safety department will be. Director Robert M. Chiaramonte said the department was involved in research on the use of helmets and will have a report soon, possibly later this month.

Defending his bill, Tranter said "I think the legislature should only intrude into a person's life style when it is for the protection or the good of the public...it should not be imposing restrictions on a person's individual liberties."

He said Ohio enacted its law in the first place only under the gun of the federal government which threatened loss of highway funds for states refusing to follow its edict for helmets. "To me, this is the kind of pressure, and shoving things down our throats, that I think the people around the country are getting tired of," he said.

He noted that California refused to capitulate to the federal requirement, and eventually, in 1975, the government rescinded it.

In some other states, including Illinois and Nebraska, courts held that the requirement ran afoul of their state constitutions. Generally, it has been difficult to obtain convictions, and many charges have been thrown out of courts, he said.

Tranter said "some surveys have been made which show that the wearing of helmets is in itself a physical danger. They restrict peripheral vision, restrict the ability to hear oncoming traffic, and certain crash reports have not shown a decrease in head injuries."

States which have repealed helmet laws to date, Tranter said, are Kansas, South Dakota, Iowa, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Oklahoma, Arizona, Alaska and Louisiana.

STOPS DAM — The snail darter, a 3-inch fish belonging to the perch family, is responsible for halting operation of a $116 million dam on the Tennessee River at Knoxville. The U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the already-completed dam would destroy the rare fish's only known habitat.

Winter No Bother To Amish Farmers

KIDRON, Ohio (AP) — Joe Hershberger, a 57-year-old Amish farmer, doesn't let the record winter bother him: "We're just having more winter than usual."

Because his religion forbids it, he is used to doing without all those "modern contrivances" run by electricity and natural gas which the rest of us depend on.

"The wood has kept us warmed pretty good and the buggy can still go where a car can't," Hershberger said recently when he and other Amish men in their black jackets gathered at the Kidron Town and Country Store in Wayne County

Joe's brother, Menno, had just come in from hitching his black buggy around the corner from where motorists were hoping to start their cars.

"Last weekend, the roads got so bad they were closed even to horses," Menno said. "But if that happened, you could always take them across the fields. We've had frozen water pipes for two weeks, but other than that, we haven't had any real problems."

The Amish home is self-sufficient in the worst of weather. Coal or wood is burned for heat, and the barn is kept warm by the body heat of animals. Canned food was put up months ago, so there is little reason for housewives to go outside.

Amish children usually have no problem with school because Amish schools are heated by wood-burning furnaces.

One of their few problems is when the Amish have to come in contact with the mechanized 20th century. Last week, for example, the Amish had some trouble getting their milk to market because milk trucks couldn't travel the ice-slicked roads.

Joe had another problem last week when he couldn't get his horse shod because the blacksmith's truck got stuck in the snow and the blacksmith couldn't open his shop.

He said that many outsiders, or "Yankees" as the Amish call them, often wish they had to do without mechanical contrivances.

"They say they wish they could live like us," he said. "They could—it's a choice. We're used to nothing else. We have problems, too, with the winter, but we've looked forward to supplying our own needs. With something like this winter, the conveniences are all cut out for the people who need them . . . For us, it's just an old fashioned winter."

Glenn, Metzenbaum Back Own Pay Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio's two Democratic senators, John Glenn and Howard Metzenbaum, both voted with the majority Wednesday when the Senate tabled an amendment to disapprove a pay raise for members of Congress and other top government officials.

Their yes votes, in effect, were votes for the pay raise.

NIXON GOLFS — Former President Richard Nixon takes a determined swing as he golfed on the Shore Cliffs course near his San Clemente, Calif., home.

Crematory Hurt By Gas Shortage

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A funeral director wants a clarification this winter on the use of natural gas in his crematory because "you can't regulate death."

William P. Rutherford told the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio on Tuesday that commercial curtailments by Columbia Gas of Ohio on crematories are now in effect but could result in serious public health questions if gas allocations run out.

The public health issue would arise if gas service to the Rutherford crematory was terminated since there is no way to store corpses until fuel becomes available, Rutherford said.

Newsman Becomes CBer For Weekly Column

MIAMI (AP) — Bob Merkin crouched with one hand on his Citizens Band channel selector and the other on his microphone, waiting for a chance to jump on the noisy CB carousel of static, whine and talk.

Suddenly there was a break in conversations and Merkin pounced. "This is Miami News Goodbuddy, how be-ya?" he asked.

Merkin was hard at work writing a newspaper column.

Merkin, a 29-year-old Miami News reporter, uses the area's busy airways to gather information and gossip for his weekly CB column. It is a concept in CB reporting his editors say is unique.

The News started its column a year ago under more traditional lines, asking radio enthusiasts to phone in comments about Miami airways.

"Then it struck me as ludicrous to have the people call in about CB when we could talk to them on their own medium," recalls Stan Felder, the paper's assistant managing editor.

Merkin, a CB enthusiast who works in the paper's feature and news departments, was drafted and the column took on its new look seven months ago.

"In a funny sort of way, it's really a gossip column," says Merkin, who uses the "handle" "Miami News Goodbuddy" when he works on the column. He's "Super Rabbi" when he's on his own set.

"We try to help people with technical questions and track down rumors about Uncle Charlie's (the Federal Communications Commission) regulations, but if someone has a grandchild, we'll mention that."

"Goodbuddy" hits the air for an hour each Monday, hunting Miami's 23 channels for someone to talk to. He moves constantly, switching channels, typing notes and answering telephones.

"The other reporters on the desk hate it when I'm on the air, so they usually desert on Monday afternoons," he says. "I'm glad I have all my limbs when I'm talking."

On a recent afternoon Merkin talked to a quick succession of voices with names like "Captain Dak," "The Beast of Miami" and "The Love Machine." They spoke of their lives and radios in the rich CB argot of code words and numbers.

The general topic for the day was the new 40-channel sets now sanctioned by the FCC. Many of those on the air said they wouldn't buy them because of rumors the new sets have limited range.

"We've been doing some checking and Uncle Charlie says that rumor is definitely untrue," said Merkin, who talks with the FCC regularly.

Merkin sees the new 40 channel sets as one way of alleviating the heavy radio traffic in Miami area, a city he says has an average of three CBers on each residential block.

For that reason, Merkin has set his sights on helping CB groups organize designations for various channels on the airways.

"CBers are very community-oriented," he says. "People have formed clubs with those they have met on certain channels. Channel 12 is known as Super Soul and is almost all black. Channel 13 is Anglo and Channel 14 is basically Latin."

Jury Ponders Hustler Case

CINCINNATI (AP) — The jury in the trial of Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt resumed deliberations today after hearing what attorneys had warned them about—the contents of the magazine they were to judge.

Hamilton County Prosecutor Simon Leis read aloud the contents of the magazine to the seven men and five women during an emotional hour-long final argument Thursday.

The prosecutor's statement was the final testimony in the trial which is in its fourth week in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court.

Flynt, his brother Jimmy, his wife Althea Leasure and magazine vice president Al Van Schaik are charged with pandering obscenity and engaging in organized crime.

The jury retired Thursday after deliberating about three hours.

Mexico To Help U.S. Ease Pinch

MEXICO CITY, Mexico (AP) — Mexico will help the United States fight the energy crisis by selling 40 million cubic feet of gas a day to its northern neighbor at current interstate prices, American Embassy sources said today.

Mexico will start the gas flowing to the United States Monday or Tuesday and will also provide 600,0000 barrels of crude oil daily, the sources said.

The two-day conference features workshops and panel discussions on the theory and practice of rehabilitation for adult criminal offenders.

ROTARY SPEAKER — Ken Temple, left, was introduced as the guest speaker at the Thursday meeting of the Circleville Rotary Club by John Chilcote, right. Temple is manager of Lake Katherine Preserve in Jackson County, which is composed of 1700 acres. He showed slides and explained the many many state preserves located in Ohio and the many species of plants, flowers, and wildlife that inhabit those areas. John Fanale, chairman of the Community Fund Drive in Pickaway County, told members of the great success the drive achieved this year and expressed the agencies' appreciation for the generosity shown. George Hamrick announced that the Annual Farmers' Day meeting will be held at the 4-H and Grange Building on Feb. 17, starting promptly at 11:30. Members are requested to purchase their tickets early so that arrangements can be made. Ohio State University President Harold Enarson will be the guest speaker.

CETA Program Has 3 Job Openings

The Pickaway County CETA Program now has 3 CETA positions open for employment.

These positions are a part of the public service employment program handled through the Pickaway County Commissioners Office. Recently passed legislation and released funds have allowed the Pickaway County CETA Program to open up to these three job slots.

Applicants must reside in Pickaway County and be employed for at least the last 30 days.

The three positions include an agricultural technical assistant, a deputy corrections officer, and an engineering aide. Experience or a background in these areas would be helpful. Also, a high school education is necessary.

All interested applicants must apply through Greg Bigam, at the Pickaway County Commissioners office. Please do not apply at any other county office or agency. These positions are CETA funded. The Pickaway County CETA Program is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Get Cell Ready For Claudine Longet

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Claudine Longet won't enter the Pitkin County jail to serve her 30-day sentence until after a cell is remodeled to provide "more suitable" accommodations, one of her attorney says.

"The Pitkin County sheriff expects by June 1 to have a newly remodeled female facility at the jail," said attorney Ron Austin.

The French-born entertainer was sentenced Monday to serve the time for negligent homicide in the shooting death last March of her lover, pro ski champion Vladimir "Spider" Sabich. The term is to be served at her convenience between now and September 1.

Church Battles Continued Blows

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — The weather and the energy crunch have caused repeated grief for the United Church of Christ.

A freeway project forced demolition of the old church building last year. Then the severe weather delayed construction of a new church.

Members met in an elementary school until it closed for lack of gas. They moved their services to a chapel at Winebrenner Seminary. Then it closed.

A Methodist church in Findlay was to vote this week on a proposal to let the home congregation share its facilities until the new Church of Christ is finished.

Pickaway-Ross Is Planning Skill Olympics

The Vocational Industrial Clubs of America at the Pickaway-Ross Vocational Center will hold their Annual Skill Olympics on Feb. 10, and extends to the public an invitation to attend the evening competition beginning at 5 p.m.

The public will be permitted to watch students competing in their trade areas; auto mechanics, auto body, cosmetology, drafting, health occupations, electricity, machine shop, law enforcement, printing, carpentry and welding.

Other contests will be in leadership areas of parliamentary procedure, extemporanious and prepared speech, job interview, and opening and closing ceremony.

There will be vocational displays and an award ceremony will begin at 9 p.m.

Competitive activities have been included in VICA's Youth Development Program to motivate and develop enthusiasm for learning that will help trade, industrial, technical and health education youth take their places in society. Because competition is basic to the system of free enterprise and democracy under which these young people will live and work, competitive activities will prove to be practical and valuable experience for their future industrial careers. The student is afforded an opportunity to achieve a sense of accomplishment and recognition for skills and abilities as he learns to appreciate and develop good craftsmanship.

New 'Voice' Of Doom

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bell Laboratories has developed a new way to record that chilling voice that says you have made a mess of trying to place a call.

The Western Electric plant here will manufacture the new mechanism, called the 13A announcement system. It now is being tested by Michigan Bell in Detroit and will be produced beginning next January at the Columbus facility.

Bell Laboratories says the device repeats such messages as, "We're sorry, you have reached a nonworking number," using no moving parts.

The words, or rather thousands of little scraps of information the machine can turn into words, are stored on tiny magnetized areas in a thin garnet crystal bubble. The bubble can be moved magnetically to store and retrive information.

The machine is a little bigger than a bread box and each recorded message can be played back to as many as 500 telephone lines simultaneously.

Evel Knievel Has Bone Graft

CHICAGO (AP) — Daredevil Evel Knievel has successfully undergone a bone graft operation on his right forearm, broken earlier this week during a motorcycle crash, a hospital spokesman said.

Doctors at Michael Reese Hospital performed the bone graft Thursday and placed a plate in the arm, fractured Monday during a practice leap over a 90-foot-long tank filled with sharks. Knievel was to have performed a similar leap that night on a television special.

He was injured when he lost control of his motorcycle on landing. Knievel later blamed the mishap on pressure from promoters of the event and on unsafe conditions.

Demos Unhappy With Rhodes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rumblings of discontent among some majority Democrats in the legislature have started to surface over Gov. James A. Rhodes' handling of the energy crisis.

Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, urged Rhodes on Thursday to use his authority in the declared state of crisis and order mandatory controls to conserve natural gas.

Senate Majority Whip Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, has also said the governor should invoke "selective" controls to deal with the natural gas shortage.

However, the top Democratic leaders, House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, and Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, have backed the governor publicly, thus far.

Hall, chairman of the Elections, Financial Institutions and Insurance Committee, said in a letter to Rhodes that he should make the hard decisions on controls "rather than leaving them to our utility companies."

Hall charged that some Ohioans "are not making a true effort to conserve. They believe that because you have not mandated controls the crisis is not real."

The governor, while exhorting Ohioans to conserve, has not ordered schools or businesses to shut down. He has at his disposal a contingency plan drawn up by the Ohio Energy and Resource Development Agency that would close schools for 30 days and limit many businesses to 40-hour weeks.

Hall said Daytonians found the present situation "unfair and disruptive.

"They are angered to learn that their schools must close, and yet they continue to find some all night stores, bars and businesses operating as usual," he said.

Hall said mandatory controls were already in effect in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey.

"I understand your reluctance to close our elementary and secondary schools or mandate hours for business," he said in his letter. "And yet, your decision not to mandate any guidelines at all has effectively given the natural gas companies the power to issue daily edicts closing schools and businesses at will."

When asked about mandatory controls earlier this week, Rhodes said: "I know that some people want a police state. They want highway patrolmen waking people up at 3 in the morning, asking them what their temperature is. This will not work."

Another Dayton Democrat, Sen. Neal F. Zimmers Jr., D-5, said his Energy and Public Utilities Committee would begin next week an investigation of Ohio gas companies in an effort to assess the scope of the current fuel shortage.

"Hopefully," Zimmers said in a statement, "these hearings will bring to light causes for Ohio's current crisis situation, and enable the Senate to develop legislation which could prevent a recurrence of the disaster we are experiencing this winter."

Democratic leaders said last month a special select committee would be appointed to probe the natural gas utilities.

OSHA Issues CO Warning

CINCINNATI (AP)—Factory operators in the weatherwracked Midwest who have turned to alternative heating methods were warned Thursday to guard against high carbon monoxide levels.

A federal occupational health official said high carbon monoxide levels could cause death among factory workers.

Ron McCann, area director of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), issued the announcement after finding high carbon monoxide levels in three area factories.

He said coal, coke, wood, propane and gasoline are the most common alternatives to natural gas. But, if burned in unvented areas, carbon monoxide can replace the oxygen in a person's blood stream and cause suffocation, McCann said.

Carbon monoxide levels described as dangerously high were found in the three factories. They were not identified.

Mike Connors, an industrial hygienist and compliance officer, explained that a safe level is a reading of 50 parts per million of carbon monoxide.

"We've had readings of 300 to 400 parts per million at these places," Connors said.

They said a main cause of high levels is the shutting down of ventilating systems in plants to contain available heat.

McCann said his office is holding complaints to investigate six area plants.

Rain Hits Southeast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A low pressure center just south of the Florida panhandle is spreading rain across Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia and rain across Florida. Heavy rain fell across portions of Florida overnight.

Elsewhere across the southeast, most precipitation was in the form of drizzle. There also was locally dense fog, and travel advisories, were issued across north and central Florida, south Alabama, Georgia and southeast Mississippi.

Snow fell again from the upper Mississippi valley to the Great Lakes.

Travel advisories were extended for portions of western New York and extreme northwestern Pennsylvania. Four to six inches of new snow was expected in western New York, one to three inches across much of northern New England.

Temperatures were generally mild across most parts of the nation this morning. Readings were in the 40s and 50s over the southern plains, the southeastern states, the southern Rockies, southern Arizona, the Pacific states and the middle Atlantic states.

Readings in the 20s and 30s prevailed elsewhere, except for some teens across northern Minnesota and the upper Great Lakes.

The range overnight was from zero at Marquette, Minn., to 71 at Key West, Fla., and Vero Beach, Fla.

On Books And Activities At The Library

The weather may not be changing but the Pickaway County District Public Library is taking on a different look. We're under-going a slight period of confusion but shortly it will result in better service for you, our patrons.

Be sure to look for the book return slot in the end of our new charge out desk. This should eliminate the piled up counter we've experienced during rush hours in the past. When charging out books, if you line up on the end towards the reference room, traffic flow should be smoother.

The new card catalog is in the charge out area and should be more convenient and less crowded to use. Other changes are in the offing, so be sure to keep your eye on the Library. We're growing and getting better every day!

Mark your calendar for our series to cure the Winter Blahs! Beginning Tuesday, February 15 and continuing each Tuesday through March 15 at 10 a.m. we will be having a program on handicrafts. Each program will feature a film from Kent State and we hope to add to the program with local talent. Puppets, weaving, papercraft, batik and prints will be handicrafts explored. It's free and open to the public. Join your friends for five mornings of interesting and informative fun at the Public Library. It's a sure cure for the Blahs!

The book and magazine sale is in full swing but you had better hurry to get the choice bargains. This is an inexpensive way to get books for little ones and to teach them how to use them properly. The magazines could afford many hours of entertainment for young ones home from school. They can also be a good source for material to be used in crafts. Lots of good adult books and some encyclopedias are also being offered at bargain prices. Do yourself a favor while you help the Library with its spring cleaning.

Weather has curtailed the arrival of some of our new books but we are shelving a few. For the dreamers of warmer days, another volume in the Time-Life Library Of Boating has arrived. "Cruising Grounds" is a beautifully illustrated volume of the many shorelines for wanderers. It's just the answer for escaping from the chill of the lowered thermostat.

"Count Manfred" by Miranda Seymour is an historical suspense novel that will appeal to Gothic fans. That sounds like something for everyone. You'll meet Lord Byron, the poet; Byron's friend, Ruthven a sinister force; and Lucy, Byron's lover. It's certainly a blending of the ingredients that make for an unusual Gothic!

Marilyn Harris has penned the first of six historical novels which will trace the Eden family from the French Revolution to the present. "This Other Eden" is the love story of the beautiful commoner, Marianne Locke, and handsome Lord Thomas Eden.

"The China Expert" by Michael Delving is a novel of suspense. A dealer in Chinese art finds himself involved in a crime that could have international repercussions.

Readers of romantic suspense will enjoy "Bequeath Them No Tumbled House" by Yvonne MacManus. A gold mine, murder, and long lost relatives provide Alyce Laird with an exciting experince.

The title, "Ultimatum," tells you the new novel by Antony Trew is a story of suspense and tension. The story involves two powers in a nuclear threat.

The 21st century is the setting for "Shadrach In The Furnace" by Robert Silverberg. It's the story about a life-and-death battle between two titans in a society pushed to extremes.

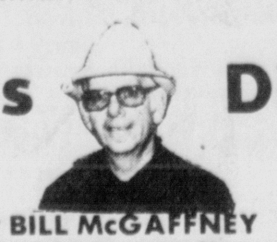
Willie's Dillies



By BILL McGAFFNEY
Herald Sports Editor

Last night as we sat in a chair in the living room in "Our Irish Estate" — dressed in flannel pajamas, a terry cloth robe and wrapped in a blanket — we looked out the window at the pile of snow and ice and thought "what a heck of a night."

But, suddenly we realized that our feelings were really just a matter of outlook.

We thought back to the times when we were kids and a big snowfall was really a gift from heaven — and how much fun we had.

There was the sled riding with guys and gals piled four or five high with the metal runners singing their song as they sped over the snow covered streets and down the hills — The whole gang getting together and hiking to the park where we spent hours ice skating and playing stick hockey, and the comfort of the big roaring fire that was always present on the banks of the lake — Speeding down a steep slope while perched precariously on a garbage can lid — strapping barrell staves on your shoes and proving to everyone that you were the world's greatest skier — making a big pie in the snow and playing "Cut The Pie" or as some people called it "Fox And Geese" — Snowball fights — Building an igloo or fort which some clown always jumped on and broke down — The snow falling softly on your face with the gentleness of soft kisses — And many other things too numerous to mention.

Now that we have grown up — maybe we have never really grown up but just put on a few years — we find the same things that were great as a kid have now become something to gripe about.

We must admit — We've done both — And we think we liked things better when we looked forward to the snow and fun it brought, rather than our present attitude of griping about it.

Our "fearless" forecast — We are glad to see both Logan Elm and Circleville back in action but — to be perfectly honest — we don't have the slightest idea how much the long layoff has hurt either team and wish them both the best. One thing for sure — we hope things get back to normal and that's "snow" joke.

Until next time, have a nice day-be a good sport.

Braves Cagers Host CHS Tigers Saturday

There is finally some good news on the local basketball scene as Circleville will travel to Logan Elm to meet the Braves Saturday night with the reserve game getting underway at 6:30 p.m.

The game will be played in Spangler Memorial Gym which has electric heat and will not affect the present gas shortage.

Both teams have been holding limited practices during the past several weeks and they are certainly looking forward to getting things back to normal.

Neither school will hold a presale of adult tickets. These tickets may be purchased at the door Saturday night.

Circleville will put student tickets on sale for all elementary, junior high and high school students from 10:30 a.m. to noon Saturday in the high school cafeteria. Students are requested to enter the building at the door closest to the cafeteria. All money from the presale of student tickets will remain in the Circleville Athletic Department.

Logan Elm will hold a presale of student tickets from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. today in the high school office.

Negro Baseball Panel Makes Final Choices

NEW YORK (AP) — After naming nine top black stars to baseball's Hall of Fame, the Committee on Negro Baseball Leagues has voted itself out of business.

John Henry "Pop" Lloyd and Martin Dihigo were added to the Cooperstown shrine Thursday, then the committee announced that it has completed its job and will not meet again.

Created by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn in 1970, the special committee had previously named Satchel Paige, Josh Gibson, Cool Papa Bell, Buck Leonard, Monte Irvin, Judy Johnson and Oscar Charleston to the Hall of Fame.

Johnson and Irvin had served on the committee along with Roy Campanella, another Hall of Famer, veteran baseball writer Dick Young, longtime baseball executive Joe Reichler, and Frank Forbes, Eddie Gottlieb and Eppy Barnes, all of whom were on the scene when the best black players performed in the Negro Leagues.

"The intent was to vote into the Hall of Fame such outstanding performers in the old Negro leagues who, in the opinion of the committee, would have made the Hall of Fame had black players been permitted to play in the big leagues," a prepared statement said.

"Satisfied it had accomplished its mission to evaluate the stars of the Negro leagues and further believing that no other candidate considered by the committee in the past seven years would muster the 75 per cent of the votes necessary for election, the committee on Negro Baseball Leagues, now therefore, has unanimously voted that it should be dissolved."

Lloyd, a tall, gangly shortstop, was called the black Honus Wagner. Dihigo, a slugging outfielder, also was an outstanding pitcher. Each received seven votes from the eightmember committee. The only other player to get any support was pitcher Willie Foster. He received two votes.

Statistics were kept erratically in the black leagues but available records indicate that Lloyd had a career batting average of .362 for his 27-year playing career. He batted .475 for the New York Lincoln Giants in 191 and .415 for Philadelphia Hilldale in 1923 when he was 39 years old.

Dihigo, the first Cuban to reach Cooperstown, hit .320 in 12 seasons in the United States but also won more than 200 games in the Mexican and Cuban Winter leagues. He also pitched the first no-hitter in the Mexican League.

Lloyd died March 19, 1965, barely one month before his 81st birthday. Dihigo died May 20, 1971, four days short of his 66th birthday.

Both will be inducted posthumously in ceremonies at Cooperstown Aug. 8. On the same day, Ernie Banks, elected by the Baseball Writers Association of America, Joe Sewell, Al Lopez and the late Amos Rusie, named by the Veteran's Committee, will be inducted.

DETROIT (AP) — The International Hockey League has posted a $100 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a spectator who assaulted the Kalamazoo Wings coach during a game in Toledo Tuesday.

Illinois State Stuns Rebels, 88-84

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Jerry Tarkanian may have to change his mind about playing road games. He certainly will have to live with his words, at the very least.

Earlier in the week, the coach of the Nevada-Las Vegas basketball team expressed a passion for playing games away from home with this bold statement: "To me, the greatest thrill is going into a place on the road where everybody's screaming for you to lose ... and sticking it to them."

However, the thrill was gone for Tarkanian Thursday night after his fourth-ranked Rebels were stunned 88-84 by Illinois State at Normal, Ill.

"I think the crowd had us in awe," said Tarkanian, suddenly revising his views about the road. "It was the noisiest place I've ever been in."

Perhaps the roar of the crowd had something to do with his team's downfall, but the real culprit was the Rebels' inability to keep a step ahead of the flying Redbirds.

"We did not control the tempo of the game," Tarkanian said. "Illinois State did. We played at their speed. If we are not controlling the tempo of the game, the only way to get it is by rebounding and we don't rebound well.

"ISU played an outstanding game. We have no excuses. We made a couple of runs at them, but they never folded. They killed us on the boards. Our big people are not that strong."

Obviously, Tarkanian thinks his team is not that good, either.

"I think we're overrated," he reflected.

In other college basketball games Thursday night, secondranked UCLA defeated Washington 75-65; seventh-ranked Michigan trimmed Indiana 89-84; No. 15 Providence nipped Rhode Island 67-66; No. 16 Clemson defeated Cleveland State 77-55; No. 17 Syracuse walloped Buffalo State 100-63, and No. 18 Purdue outscored Northwestern 92-85.

Forward Bill Lewis paced Illinois State's balanced attack with 21 points as the Redbirds snapped Nevada-Las Vegas' 14-game winning streak.

"It gave us incentive when they only beat Bradley by one point Tuesday night," Lewis said of Nevada-Las Vegas' 107-106 victory earlier in the week. "We figured that if Bradley could stay close, we could beat them because we're a much better team than Bradley."

Roy Hamilton, UCLA's sophomore guard, stole a pass and scored two baskets, leading an 8-0 blitz in 39 seconds, sparking the Bruins over Washington in a key Pacific-8 Conference game.

Rickey Green scored 32 points, including eight on free throws in the final two minutes, sending Michigan past Indiana. Bruce Campbell's 18-foot field goal with 28 seconds left propelled Providence past Rhode Island.

Colon Abraham's 21 points powered Clemson past Cleveland State. Syracuse whipped Buffalo State behind Roosevelt Bouie's 17 points, and Purdue defeated Northwestern as Walter Jordan contributed 22 points.

Greatest Baseball Team Ever?

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball journalism's lively octogenarian, Fred Lieb of St. Petersburg, Fla., paused in our town this past week long enough to jot down what he considered the greatest team that could be assembled from the past 100 years.

It was an awesome lineup ... Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker in the outfield ... Lou Gehrig at first, Eddie Collins at second ... Hans Wagner at shortstop ... Pie Traynor at third ... Bill Dickey and Mickey Cochrane sharing the catcher's mask ... Cy Young, Walter Johnson, Christy Mathewson, Lefty Grove and Sandy Koufax serving the ball up from the mound.

It was a veritable "Who's Who" of the game — largely giants of the past, men of leather, boundless skills and durability. Hard to argue with that team.

A young girl, admitting a hero worship for Martin Luther King and Choo Choo Coleman, looked over the list carefully and acknowledged she was dumbfounded.

"How can anyone pick an alltime all-star baseball team and not have a single black player on it?" she asked with defiance.

This provided some room for thought. How, really?

Lieb, 88, an objective observer who has been chronicling the game for 66 years and long respected member of the Hall of Fame Veterans Committee, was aware that he was leaving himself open for potshots.

"I was fully aware of the racial question," he said. "I had to ponder a long time about leaving off such great players as Hank Aaron, who has broken many of the records of both Ruth and Cobb; the fantastic Willie Mays and Jackie Robinson.

"However, I had to be true to my own convictions. Having seen most of the great players, past and present, I honestly feel this is the best team one could field."

The incident conjured up some interesting Hot Stove League discussions, even disagreements, on a cold, snowy day that the Committee on Negro Baseball Leagues, in its last official act, named two men to the Hall of Fame.

They were John Henry Lloyd, acclaimed the "Black Honus Wagner," and a versatile Cuban, Martin Dihigo.

Both played in the Negro Leagues before Jackie Robinson broke the color line with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947. Since Jackie's breakthrough, black players have surged through the gates in an escalating stream, reaching new peaks of stardom.

Who of them might challenge Lieb's powerful team?

With the help of Monte Irvin, the former New York Giants' outfielder who is a Hall of Famer, and that of other contributors, we came up with this all-time black team, made up of those players who competed in the majors:

1b, Willie Stargell. 2b, Joe Morgan. ss, Ernie Banks. 3b, Jackie Robinson. of, Hank Aaron, Frank Robinson, Willie Mays. c, Roy Campanella and Earl Battey. p, Satchel Paige, Bob Gibson, Don Newcombe.

It will embarrass Irvin, now a modest aide to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, but he has to be on the team, too — our designated hitter.

Toledo Goes After 'Must' Cage Victory

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Darrell Hedric of Miami and Toledo's Bob Nichols, coaching rivals in a key Mid-American Conference basketball game Saturday, sound like echoes.

"It's a very critical game for them," Hedric said of Toledo's precarious position in the league race.

The Rockets, expected to be the Redskins' principal title challenger, have dropped four of their first seven MAC starts. Miami, meanwhile, is atop the league with six victories in seven games.

"We have to win this game to have a chance," Nichols said in a realistic tone.

Nichols knows if Toledo loses the Rockets would trail Miami by four full games at the conference race's midpoint. And Toledo would face a later trip to Miami.

However, Nichols is more concerned about his own team's attack than Miami. "We've had trouble scoring points when we have a lead. If it hadn't been for that problem, we'd be in excellent shape," he said.

The Toledo mentor was referring to a pair of collapses that led to defeats at Northern Illinois and Bowling Green. The Rockets had Northern Illinois down 11 points and the Falcons behind 13 in the second half.

Hedric would welcome a fourth MAC road victory. The Redskins already have triumphed at Western Michigan, Bowling Green and Kent State. "But we lost a foolish game at home," said Hedric, thinking back to a setback to visiting Central Michigan.

In other MAC games Saturday, defending champion Western Michigan (5-2) goes to Eastern Michigan (0-7), Ball State (4-4) plays at Northern Illinois (5-2), Ohio University (2-5) at Bowling Green (4-2) and Kent State (3-4) at Central Michigan (4-2).

Hedric is sold on Northern Illinois as a bonafide contender. The host Redskins needed two overtimes to quell the Huskies 99-91 Wednesday night. "They're the most improved team in the league," he said.

In other major Ohio college games Saturday, Ohio State (7-10), in the midst of a four-game losing streak, visits touted Michigan; Xavier (6-10) entertains Detroit and Dayton (10-9) does the same for Chattanooga.

Elsewhere, Wright State (7-11) is at Virginia Commonwealth, Buffalo at Youngstown (14-4), Kentucky State at Central State (12-7), Steubenville (7-11) at Wheeling, Buffalo State at Akron (7-7) and Ashland (11-5) at Adrian.

Wittenberg (7-0) in the South and Wooster (6-1) in the North lead the Ohio Conference divisions. The Tigers are home for Ohio Wesleyan and Wooster plays a nonleague date at Otterbein.

The Hoosier-Buckeye and Mid-Ohio races have title-bearing games on tap.

In the Hoosier-Buckeye, third-place Defiance (8-4) checks in at Findlay (7-3), pacing the race with Hanover and enjoying its best HdBC start ever. Wilmington (6-3) is at Bluffto (6-5) in another important contest.

In the Mid-Ohio, Malone (9-2) and host Rio Grande (7-1) play for the conference lead. Malone fell from the top spot Wednesday night, ambushed by bitter rival Walsh 74-66.

Layton Aids Knicks Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe may not have been ready to play for the New York Knicks, but Mo Layton was.

Layton, who until Thursday night was spending more time on the Knicks' bench than on the playing floor, was inserted into the starting lineup when injuries sidelined Frazier and Monroe.

Layton was booed by the Knicks fans when his name was announced as a starter, but he left the crowd cheering later after collecting 19 points and 12 assists in New York's 108-90 National Basketball Association victory over the Houston Rockets.

"I think I proved myself again," Layton said, referring to his good start earlier in the season. "I think I gave Red (Coach Red Holzman) more confidence in my game tonight."

However, Holzman may not have needed the good performance to restore his confidence in Layton. In fact, he wasn't even surprised.

"This afternoon I watched films of the last time we played Houston and Mo did a real decent defensive job on Calvin Murphy. He was going to play no matter what," Holzman said.

In other NBA games, the Chicago Bulls beat the San Antonio Spurs 107-98; the Atlanta Hawks nipped the Buffalo Braves 100-98; the Portland Trail Blazers stopped the Indiana Pacers 107-98, and the New Orleans Jazz defeated the Golden State Warriors 105-99.

Local Matmen Take Titles In Tourney

Circleville's Mike Hamilton won the 105-pound championship and Teays Valley's Brian Adkinson captured the 119-pound crown as the Tigers placed fourth and the Vikings fifth in the Hamilton Twp. Invitational Wrestling Tournament Thursday.

Licking Heights took the team title with 249 points. Finishing in order were: Marysville, 210; Marion Pleasant, 149; Circleville, 147; Teays Valley, 115; New Albany, 72½; Marion Franklin, 71; Hamilton Twp., 69; Watkins Memorial, 68; Mifflin, 40½; West Jefferson, 36; Briggs, 25; Hartley, 12.

Placing for Circleville were: Rodney Cook, 98-pound, 2nd; Dave Happeney, 112-pound, 5th; Randy Speakman, 119-pound, 4th; John Harr, 132-pound, 3rd; Steve Vinkovich, 155-pound, 4th; Mark Linton, 167-pound, 3rd; Bill Mogan, 175-pound, 2nd.

Postponed Games Now Rescheduled

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP) — Four postponed Hoosier-Buckeye Conference college basketball games have been rescheduled, a league spokesman announced Thursday.

Manchester will play at Taylor and Wilmington at Earlham Monday night while Manchester is rescheduled at Wilmington Feb. 14 and Hanover at Findlay Feb. 20.

The games had been postponed because of poor weather conditions in the last week.

Lee Bennett Heads Falcons

ATLANTA (AP) — Leeman Bennett, who wants "to bring a winning team to Atlanta in the shortest amount of time," takes over as head coach of the National Football League Falcons with a five-year contract in which to complete his goal.

"I've seen poor programs and strong programs and I've learned the difference," said Bennett, an assistant coach for the Los Angeles Rams before getting the Falcons' job Thursday. "I'm convinced I know what it takes to get a good program going."

Bennett, 38, a former quarterback-defensive back at the University of Kentucky, was named coach by newly appointed Falcons General Manager Eddie LeBaron.

"I looked at various efforts done and narrowed it down to a very narrow field," said LeBaron, who until Wednesday had a lucrative Las Vegas law practice. "We have a five-year contract — a package that will make him one of the highest paid coaches in the league."

The amount of the contract was not disclosed, although it was rumored at $400,000 for the five-year period.

Rams Coach Chuck Knox felt Bennett's appointment as Atlanta head coach was "quite a compliment to our program."

Tommy Hudson Leads Bowling Tournament

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Tommy Hudson of Akron, Ohio, won five of eight match play games Thursday night and opened a 148-pin lead after the fourth round of the $100,000 St. Louis open Professional Bowlers Association tournament.

Hudson, a 29-year-old right hander who led after the second and third rounds, had an eight-game fourth-round total of 1,940. His 26-game pinfall was 6,346, a 244 average. Hudson also got 150 bonus pins, 30 for each of the five match play games he won.

Water Shortage Being Fought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Department of Natural Resources is making water in state-owned wells available to individuals and communities in areas short of water.

As part of its regional groundwater studies, the division of water has drilled and tested more than 150 large-diameter wells throughout the state.

All of the wells, which average 280 feet deep, have been tested to determine chemical quality of the water and long term yields.

Individual citizens or officials whose communities need temporary emergency water should contact Al Walker of the division of water in Columbus.

Court To Hear Murder Appeal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Supreme Court has agreed to hear the appeal of a suburban Columbus man who claimed insanity during his trial for the murder of his father, mother and younger brother.

Clifford G. Chase had been convicted of murder and voluntary manslaughter in the Feb. 3, 1974 shooting deaths of his father, Robert Chase; Joan Chase, the mother, and Robert W. Ames Chase, the brother, in their suburban Worthington home. Police arrested Chase at his apartment the next morning and after administering a lie detector test were given a confession.

Chase's lawyer convinced the Franklin County Common Pleas Court that the confession should not be allowed as evidence. But the prosecution appealed and the confession was admitted as evidence at the trial.

During the proceedings Chase claimed he was innocent because he was insane. A psychiatrist claimed that the defendant could not help himself.

The jury , nevertheless, found him guilty of murdering his father and of the voluntary manslaughter of his mother and brother.

The appellate court upheld that verdict.

In other action Thursday the court:

—Refused to hear the appeal of a Stark County swimming pool operator who was found liable by the lower courts after a 6½-year-old boy nearly drowned at the pool in 1972.

Michael Petrovich, the victim, and his father, Daniel R., were awarded $35,000 and $6,000 respectively by the Stark County Common Pleas Court. They had sought $165,000.

Pool operator Fred Farmer appealed but the appellate court ruled only to halve the award to the elder Petrovich.

—Denied the appeal of the operator and owner of a suburban Cleveland apartment tower who were ordered to pay a former tenant $20,047.95.

The suit comes from Lake County were Mrs. Nyjola Grybauskas had rented an 11th floor apartment in the Shoregate Towers in Willowick. Mrs. Grybauskas claimed she was asked to vacate the apartment because the operator, Associated Estates Corp., and owner, Willowick Towers Investments Co., had not filed a residency certificate and were expecting a city inspection.

In the moving agreement Mrs. Grybauskas said the firms promised to pay all her expenses while she lived at the Sheraton-Cleveland Hotel.

She sued after the expenses were not paid and the Lake County Common Pleas Court ordered her paid $47.95 for expenses and $20,000 in punitive damages.

—Rejected the appeal of three persons indicted in the "phantom employes scandal" during the closing days of Gov. John J. Gilligan's administration.

The three, Richard Sorgee, Thomas J. George and Elaine N. Fortney, all of Cuyahoga County were indicted in Franklin County for drawing state paychecks without working. They sought high court appeal after the appellate court affirmed the lower court conviction of Sorgee and George but sent Miss Fortney's case back to the lower court on the grounds the combined trial prejudiced her defense.

HERE'S YOUR AWARD — Danny Ozark, manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, appears about to be hit with an Associated Press trophy by AP Sports Writer Ralph Bernstein in Philadelphia. The Associated Press named Ozark National League Manager of the Year. Bernstein had a falling out with Ozark that almost came to blows in the Phillies' clubhouse. The presentation was made prior to an awards dinner of the Philadelphia Sports Writers Association.

Battery Taken

Thieves took a 12 volt battery from a car owned by John Weaver, 8089 Trimmer Road, after 12:30 a.m. Friday.

The thieves apparently parked their vehicle along Trimmer Road and hiked over snow banks and a fence to get at the battery, which is valued at $10.

The theft is being investigated by Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Jim Deal.

Barbara Walters Capital-Bound?

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC-TV is not "actively" considering having Barbara Walters move to Washington this spring to co-host the opening news, says ABC News President William Sheehan.

The Chicago Daily News had said that ABC was considering the transfer because of an "incompatibility" between Miss Walters and Harry Reasoner. It quoted Sheehan as saying, "We are actively considering the move."

Sheehan later said the quote was taken out of context.

ABC said in its statement that the rumors of a split were partially inspired by reports that the ABC Evening News was not faring well in the ratings.

But the network said the program's audience has increased by nearly two million since Miss Walters' premiere last October.

A developing low pressure area in the upper Mississippi Valley will move east across the southern Great Lakes today spreading some snow over Ohio. Snow fell over northern and central Ohio during the early morning hours.

The National Weather Service predicts accumulations of one to three inches of new snow in the northern and central sections of the state by this evening.

As the low moves out of Ohio this evening, snow will taper off to flurries and colder air will spread back over the state.

Temperatures were in the upper 20s over most of Ohio this morning with readings in the low 30s along the Ohio River. Today's highs were expected to range from the upper 20s in the northwest to the upper 30s in the south.

Temperatures tonight will drop to a low of around zero in the northwest and to between 10 and 15 degrees in the extreme south.

Daytime highs over the weekend will be in the teens and twenties with overnight lows near the zero mark over much of the state.

Extended outlook for Ohio, Sunday through Tuesday: mostly fair weather except a chance of snow north Tuesday. Highs Sunday in the teens and low 20s, warming to the 20s and low 30s by Tuesday. Lows near zero Sunday morning, rising to 10 to 15 by Tuesday.

Find DP&L Project Able To Proceed

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The Power Siting Commission has determined that a Dayton Power & Light Co. project does not need a certificate of environmental compatibility and public need from the commission.

DP&L requested the ruling on jurisdiction for certain modifications it is to make to two curcuits that will supply the proposed Normandy Distribution Substation near Centerville.

The commission agreed with the company's position that modifications did not constitute a substantial addition under the applicable statute.

CPAs Suggest Cash-Saving, Headache-Avoiding Pointers

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of five articles prepared by The Ohio Society of Certified Public Accountants offering advice on filing 1976 Federal Income Tax Returns.

Despite all the changes the Tax Reform Act of 1976 brought, many long-standing rules still apply, and keeping them in mind when preparing tax returns can save money or prevent headaches.

For example, if you held more than one job during the year, there's a chance that more than the maximum Social Security tax required — $895 — was withheld from your pay. If you paid more, you can claim a refund, or credit, on line 63 of Form 1040 — line 20b of Form 1040A.

If you owe additional taxes and see no way of raising the money before April 15, don't let that deter you from filing your return anyway. There will be a penalty for late payment of one half of one percent of the balance owed for each month of delay, plus seven per cent annual interest. But for late filing of the return the penalty is five per cent a month, up to a maximum of 25 per cent a year.

In addition, the statute of limitations does not take effect until three years after the filing of a properly filled-out, signed return.

Or, if for some reason you can't file a return by the April 15 deadline, obtain IRS Form 4868 — application for an automatic two-month extension. The form must be accompanied by a check for whatever you estimate your tax obligation will be. If you underestimate the amount you owe you will have to pay interest on the unpaid amount, and if the unpaid amount is more than 10 per cent of your tax liability, a penalty may be assessed.

If fortune brought you a big jump in income last year, you may be eligible for income averaging, which, in effect, lets you average out your income over a five-year period, with a resulting lower tax rate. If after reading the instructions you find that you do qualify, use Schedule G for computing your tax.

If after filing your return you discover you overlooked something important — a substantial amount of income or a sizeable deduction, for example — don't panic: file an amended return on Form 1040X. It's much easier than filling out the original return because the only data required beyond name, address, etc., is the information you are amending.

You can save time by not listing penny amounts on your tax return. Round off sums to the nearest dollar, if it's $5.50 or more make it $6.00, $5.49 or less becomes $5.00.

The most common errors made on tax returns are easily avoided: mistakes in arithmetic, using the wrong tables, leaving out social security numbers, failure of one or both parties to sign joint returns, etc. Professional tax advisers try to prevent such goofs by giving a return one final check just making sure the arithmetic is right and no spaces have been left vacant by oversight.

Avoidable errors can result in the inconvenience of having your return sent back for refiling; and perhaps the expense of penalty or interest charges. They could also suggest to the tax collector that the return probably contains more serious errors, thus leading to a tax audit.

The Ohio Society of CPAs suggests that a little extra time spent on the tax return is very worthwhile.

PTO News

The January meeting of the Pickaway Township Elementary School PTO was held recently in the school auditorium. The pledge to the flag was led by Kim Eitel and devotions were presented by the Ned Rader family.

It was voted to make a donation to "Reading is Fundamental," and plans were made for the spaghetti supper. The new draperies which the PTO purchased for the auditorium had arrived and had been installed.

The meeting was followed by the annual talent contest with the following winners: Grades one through three — first, Lorcinda Jordan; second, Mindy Willis; third, Erin Hardin and fourth, Christy Judy. Grades four through six — first, Wendy Snyder; second, Mark Willis; third, Alisa Judy and fourth, Denise Groce. Also performing were Robert Mills with a harmonica solo and Mrs. Richard Burch who sang.

Flood Coverage Outlined For Area Residents

Residents in the corporation limits of Pickaway County towns are eligible for flood insurance, according to a representative of the county's Independent Insurance Agencies Association. Also, businesses in the five incorporated towns can purchase the insurance.

Those areas eligible in the county for this protection are Circleville, South Bloomfield, Ashville, Laurelville and New Holland. Unincorporated areas cannot purchase the insurance because the county does not have recent flood plain maps.

Cost for residential dwellings is $2.50 per $1,000 which covers the building, and $3.50 per $1,000 for the contents. Commerical units in the incorporated areas can be protected for $4 per $1,000.

Area residents have been concerned with storm sewage back-up damages, which this insurance does not cover. It covers surface water only. Any agent licensed to sell insurance in Ohio can sell this insurance, and it can be purchased on a yearly basis.

IMPORTANT NOTICE
REGARDING GAS SERVICE

Should it become necessary that gas service to the area in which you live or have property be interrupted due to an insufficient supply of flowing gas and the resulting loss of gas pressure it is essential that you take the following steps to expedite restoring gas service to your property when it becomes possible to do so:

1. Turn the shut off valve which is located in the piping on the left side of the face of the meter by turning it one quarter turn until the handle or nut is crosswise to the piping.
2. Turn the shut off valve located in the piping immediately ahead of each gas appliance by turning them one quarter turn and until the handle or nut is crosswise to the gas piping.

In the event it is necessary that the gas outage be for an extended period of time, during which the outside temperatures are below freezing, the following steps should be taken to prevent damage of piping and equipment from freezing:

1. Drain the water heater.
2. Drain the toilet tank and sponge the water out of the bottom of the toilet.
3. Remove and empty all water traps (Kitchen sink, lavatories, laundry tubs, etc.) Where drain traps are not accessible anti-freeze or enough salt to prevent freezing should be used.
4. Disconnect clothes washers and dishwashers and drain water supply hoses.
5. Drain and blow out water boilers in furnaces and all other water holding piping and equipment.

In addition to using fireplaces, if electricity is available, burning lights and operating electrical appliances can provide some heat inside the structure but care must be exercised to prevent fires.

As soon as the gas supply and pressures have recovered sufficiently to restore gas service, qualified personnel will be in your area to direct and perform the restoration of your service.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR SATURDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Even though your day may be crowded, don't overlook details through haste. Seemingly minor factors could be most important to the overall picture of a successful day.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Venus now puts the accent on romance. You should hear directly or indirectly some highly interesting news about an old flame.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): A short trip may bring some surprising results — even, possibly, a complete change in your present set-up.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): A day in which to keep your own counsel. Otherwise, it would be only too easy to involve yourself in fruitless discussions or other communications which get you nowhere.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Some surprising events indicated — perhaps a completely unexpected visit from an old friend or relative from afar.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): If planning a trip, be sure that you don't go overboard financially. Get all schedules, costs, etc. in writing. Better plan on some "extras," too.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Leave the status quo in all phases of your life unless you are forced to make changes because of unexpected circumstances. And even then, act reservedly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Good planetary influences. A novel twist, a new approach to a nonmoving project should spark fresh interest, relieve the monotony of details. Winnings for good efforts!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Don't overplay your hand, but stay in there pitching with the best of them. The right balance and careful decisions can mean top results soon.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Stellar influences indicate a wider scope of interests, possibly greater activity. But take precautions not to overstep wise limits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Demonstrate your talents in the areas where they will do the most good, and don't become unnerved by stubborn opposition. Originality of approach will net you big advantages.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Study the results of previous actions. If everything did not turn out as planned, profit by the experience.

YOU BORN TODAY have a bright, alert mind and unusual physical dexterity. Your enthusiasm for life and all that it holds knows no bounds, and you are always eager and ready to accept new ideas. Normally a cooperative worker and partner, you may, however, go about things in your own way at times, forgetting others concerned in your plans. In fact, you can be extremely erratic and unsystematic in your methods, but you DO get things done eventually. Proscrastination is one of the traits you MUST learn to conquer; also a tendency toward excessive volubility. Under ordinary circumstances, you are clear-sighted and realistic but, when your emotions take over, your mental vision becomes blurred.

HOME GROWN — Florence Owens of Wayne Twp. holds one of two tomatoes produced by a plant she grew in her house during the winter. Mrs. Owens reported the plant had many blooms but only produced two tomatoes.

Contaminated Water May Cause Headaches

If the severe winter storm has not caused enough headaches already, possible bacterial contamination of well water could make the heads and stomachs of rural residents throb with pain.

And while there is "some chance" of contracting various intestinal diseases from contaminated water now, the probabilities will grow with the onset of warmer weather.

Snow, like other surface waters, contains a variety of harmful bacteria which can cause illnesses in humans, according to Hugh Barnhill, Pickaway County Health Environmentalist.

The snow can blow into dug wells which are not properly covered and be dissolved into the water supply, he said. While bacteria will not grow in the frozen snow, it is propagated as the snow melts and provides a growth medium for the bacteria.

The problem is compounded by standing water around wells - the kind of situation that occurs during periods of flooding.

Runoff water from sewage systems, animal feedlots, and wildlife areas can contaminate the wells. While the bacteria is not pathogen, it can cause digestive problems, he said.

The biggest problem facing rural residents is that dug wells cannot be properly or effectively protected.

However, an application of chlorine bleach to the well could provide some safeguard.

The bleach won't hurt you, Barnhill said, but it will give off a "sour" taste for about 12 hours until it dissolves into the water supply.

Barnhill recommends that the bleach be added at night.

The exact amount of bleach to add to a dug well is somewhat hard to determine, he said, because of the varying depths of wells in the county and the amount of water in their reservoirs.

Generally, it is best to start out with about a gallon, he said, and then have the water tested by the Health Department.

Drilled wells don't create as much of a problem, he said. The water cannot become contaminated unless the well is drilled through a gravel base that is flooded with surface water.

Bleach can also be added to drilled wells for safety.

Residents who face contaminated water supplies should make plans to carry fresh water to their homes, he said.

Aside from water problems, the winter storms could also have created sewage disposal troubles in rural areas, he said.

However, residents will not be able to determine if septic tanks or shallow leach fields have frozen until the warm-weather thaw.
